ZETA SIGMA ANNUAL BANQUET

Thirty-Second Anniversary Is Marked by Social Affair.

The big social event of the college year, namely, the annual banquet of Zeta Sigma, was pulled off on Saturday evening, November 6, as a fitting observance of the thirty-second anniversary of the founding of the society.

At about 6:30 o'clock the members of Zeta Sigma, re-inforced by several of the old boys who were back for the big night, their lady friends, and the guests of the society, sat down to one of those banquets that go to make up college life and its accompanying feeling of good fellowship. The banquet hall was artistically decorated in blue and white, colors of Zeta Sigma, and an appropriate touch of gray and crimson, the colors of its sister society, Alpha Theta. Small birch bark canoes were strung about the hall to call to mind "the rythm of the plashing oar upon the Pine" and the tables were fittingly decorated with white carnations while from one of those "jungle haunts," the orchestra was serving snappy song.

The menu for the evening was as follows:

Cocktail	American aux Fruits
	Noisettes
Consomme		Biscuits
Celeri		Olives
Poulet Sauce Blanche		Pommes de Terre Caramellees
Petits Bois au Beurres		Petits Pains "Parker House"
Salade Printaniere		Gaufrettes
Tarte aux Pommes, a la Mode		Cafe
Le Breuvage de Zeta Sigma

After the dinner our toastmaster and captain, Allen Follette, ordered the lines cast off and the good ship Zeta Sigma rolled slowly and majestically out to sea in charge of her first mate, Lee Sharrar. Sharrar gave a very interesting and earnest talk and on the side enlightened the ship's company as regarded the real quest of Captain Follette, namely that of Golden Fleece. Our stewardess, Miss Esther Friedrich, was then introduced and spoke very fittingly on the pleasant ties and associations that bind together Zeta Sigma and its sister Alpha Theta. We next heard from the cabin boy, Lowell Hudson, who spoke on "Determination," and assured Zeta Sigma of the whole-hearted and determined support of its new members. The next speaker Mister Lawrence Marks, was as Jerry himself put it, "feelin' most awful seasick," but nevertheless gave a splendid talk on "Acceleration." One of the old fellows gave the next talk speaking on "Hallucinations." Adams gave some interesting side lights on some of Sharrar's experiences while on the road which would be of intense interest to any one scandalously inclined. The Zeta Sigma quartette was the next number on the program and they sure did manufacture some mean harmony. Ask anyone who was there if you don't believe it. Robert "Bob" Wyatt then spoke on "Prognostication." That word had 'em all fooled but when "Bob" began to expand the mists soon rolled away. J. S. Supernaw, the representative from the Adelphics at Olivet, with whom Zeta Sigma is affiliated, gave us a talk in which he told of the work and prospects of the Adelphics and of the pleasant associations of the two societies. Due to the illness of Johnson, who was to be the next speaker, Dean Mitchell gave the closing speech on "Characterization."

After toasts to Zeta Sigma and to Alpha Theta and the singing of the Zeta Sigma song the party was temporarily broken up only to re-unite in the "gym" where the all important business of dancing occupied the minds of all until Sunday. The Zeta Sigma Banquet was over. Those who were merely back for that one grand reunion wished themselves back in college again; those who are now in college were sincerely glad they are in college; and each and everyone went home with thoughts of Sunday, Church and Prayer.

RULES AND REGULATIONS FOR DANCING

The following are the rules and regulations for dancing which were drawn up by the Student Council of last year with the exception to article 8 which has been amended to read:—

That the Student Council allow college classes and organizations to hold dancing parties on the campus to be attended by those whom the classes or organizations may invite. These classes or organizations must first obtain permission for the dance from the Student Council and must follow the Student Council regulations for dancing.

1. Campus dancing is allowed in Alma College not to exceed twice a month.

2. A campus dance is defined as any dance including only college students and to which all college students are invited whether it be held on the campus or not.

There may be such alumni, guests and friends of students in attendance as the Council or its delegated committee may invite.

3. There shall be at least four chaperones, two of whom shall be faculty members.

4. Campus dances may be given only by the Student Council through its delegated committee.

5. All regulations relative to time and place of campus dances shall be decided by the Student Council committee in consultation with the Dean of Women.

6. Rules of action and dress.

(a) Dancers shall at all times carry themselves with ladylike and gentlemanly manners.

(b) Such dances as the waltz, one-step, fox-trot, etc., are approved; but such dances as the "shimmie" and other new dances are disapproved and will not be tolerated.

(c) The power rests with the dance committee, the Student Council marshal, or the chaperones to call dancers to orderly conduct, and to punish them as the Student Council may direct.

(d) The Student Council discourages the wearing of extreme evening dress at campus dances.

7. The Student Council further recommends that college students refrain from dancing in public and semi-public places.

8. There shall be no group dances other than those given by the Student Council until further notice.

(a) That the Student Council allow college classes and organizations to hold dancing parties on the campus to be attended by those whom the classes or organizations may invite. These classes or organizations must first obtain permission for the dance from the Student Council and must follow the Student Council regulations for dancing.

PHILOMATHEAN

The Philomathean Literary society met in the society rooms, Monday, October 29. Roll call was answered by the Philo Yell. The impromptu, "Why the Irish killing is continued" was given by Marjorie MacCurdy, Leone Brown gave a report on "What Ireland would be like as a Sinn Fein Republic." Three of the new girls, Pauline Strick, Helen Scott, and Ruth Stuart responded to the impromptu, "My first impressions of Philomathean." Then followed an impromptu debate on the question: "Resolved that Wright Hall rules should be abolished." The affirmative was supported by Louise Hainline, Avis Lane and Helen Platt and the negative by Helen Huff, Mildred Gerow and Helen Carpenter. The judges returned a two to one decision in favor of the negative.

OUR PRESIDENT

PHI PHI ALPHA ENJOYS STAG

Society Gathers in "For Men Only" Banquet.

Saturday evening Phi Phi Alpha enjoyed its annual Stag Banquet. At about eight o'clock, thirty-five or more men gathered in the dining room of the Wright House. Hardly were they seated around the festal board before the white coated swipes sallied forth from the culinary regions, laden with delicious viands of all sorts. The banquet ran its course through the music of the soup, the chicken, potatoes, and squash, the pie a la mode, and finally the finishing touch of Phi Phi Alpha punch. When the hunger of all had been satiated, and the last diner had made way with his last fork, the feast of flesh ended, and the feast of words began.

With a scraping of chairs, the men settled down to listen when Toastmaster Barnhart rose, and after a few appropriate words, introduced the first speaker, Hartzell Lyons. Contrary to his general custom, Mr. Lyons did not sing, but the vocal entertainment which he gave was nevertheless appreciated. He spoke on "The Needs of the Hour," and when he finished all agreed that he had brought forth, not only humor, but fundamental fact as well.

Mr. Zinn, as was made known when the toastmaster introduced him, had a very delicate subject to handle, but he handled it cleverly and well: "For Men Only." The speaker painted a rather gloomy picture of the manner in which the female sex has usurped, one after another, the sovereign privileges of the male, and how the male has encouraged and helped her to do so. Beginning with the garden of Eden, he illustrated his subject in a most vivid manner. It seemed that Zinn's speech was a message of gloom, until he brought forth the fact that because of all these usurpations on the part of the gentler ones, we should value more highly the privilege of gathering at a stag banquet.

The third speaker, Thomas Dasef, entitled his discourse "The Coming Year," and in it, after sundry predictions in the matter of the matrimonial ventures of the members of the society, he drew a forecast of what Phi Phi Alpha might expect to do in the coming year, and finished in saying that we could be proud, if at the end of this year, we looked back to achievement for the society, but more than that, achievement for Alma, and its ideals and principles.

Forrest Freeman, who represented the Freshmen at the Banquet, drew his speech from the phrase, "Lest We Forget." What he had to say was pleasing in its humor and its solidness as well, for he showed, not only how the Freshman must seek never to forget his place, but he showed how the society must not and could not forget that for which it stands.

In a blaze of glory, the alumni representative spoke. John Finlayson was the orator. In his familiar easy style he told of how an alumnus feels as he looks back to what he left when he parted from college and society, but as he pointed out, a true alumnus never loses the true college and society spirit.

The speech of the evening came when Professor Hamilton rose to address the gathering. In his inimitable style, which is always fresh and interesting, he told of the quest of the college man. Sprinkled with anecdotes here and there, and filled with the advice of experience, his speech was one which every man at the banquet appreciated deeply. Professor Hamilton understands young men, and he shows his understanding in his speeches to them.

Words having failed the assembly, and all of the superheated oxygen having been expelled from oratorical lungs, the society proceeded upstairs to face the brilliant rays of Baker's alcoholic flashlight. Two shots, and the deed was done. Then it was "Home, Sweet Home" for all.

STRAW VOTE

The Seniors of the college, wishing to do their part in the activity of election day, took a straw vote of the college, both students and faculty, in the chapel last Tuesday. Some phases of the results were surprising, especially the heavy vote polled by the Socialist candidate. The voters showed their fair-mindedness in refusing to vote a straight ticket, thereby favoring Ferris for governor. The school amendment was carried by a small majority. A tabulation of the results follows:

For President
Harding	101
Cox	28
Debs	16
Watkins	2
Christensen	1
For Governor
Ferris	82
Gresbeck	65

STUDENT COUNCIL

The regular meeting of the Student Council was held November 1, 1920.

After roll call, the minutes of the two special meetings were read and approved.

Report of the committee for pamphlets. This report was accepted with its recommendations.

A motion was made and seconded that all action regarding announcements in Wright Hall be left with the President. Carried.

A motion was made and seconded that the Student Council recommend to the monitors in Pioneer that they warn the men to lock their doors, that their property may not be so easily stolen. Carried.

A motion was made and seconded that the regulations regarding dancing be published in next week's Almanian, as requested by the Dean of Women. Carried.

A motion was made and seconded that the report of the committee regarding the motion for the dancing amendment to Rule 8 of the Rule for dancing. Carried.

The motion read: Article 8 has been amended to read:

That the Student Council allow colleges and organizations to hold dancing parties on the campus to be attended by those whom the classes or organizations may invite. These classes or organizations must first obtain permission for the dance from the Student Council and must follow the Student Council regulations for dancing.

A motion was made and seconded that Zeta Sigma be allowed to dance at its annual banquet, this motion being contingent on the acceptance by the faculty of the previous motion. Carried.

Gladys Edgar, Secretary.

LAST HOME GAME LOST BY ALMA

Pretty Aerial Work Marks Defeat by Hillsdale.

A stiff defensive game by the Alma line in the first quarter of Saturday's fray with Hillsdale, forced the visitors to turn from straight football at the beginning of the second quarter to the aerial game, which proved the downfall of Coach Steele's Maroon and Cream team, the Blue and White getting away with numerous passes during the balance of the battle, which enabled her to win 36 to 0.

The Alma team went into the game with a badly crippled backfield. Walker, injured Wednesday night in practice, is out for the season, and was unable to play. Handley, out since the Albion game, was back in uniform for the first time since the Olivet game, and in far from good condition. Zastro, who had not practiced since the Ypsilanti game the previous week, was also in poor shape for a hard battle, putting Coach Steele up against it for a set of backs that could perform effectively.

Naturally the Alma backfield did not perform in the style that the Maroon and Cream followers expected, but the men must be given credit for putting up a beautiful scrap under such highly adverse conditions.

Hillsdale resorted to straight football during the first quarter, and was unable to gain consistently against the Alma line, which time and again held the visitors forcing them to punt. Alma, during the first quarter had one fine scoring chance, but it could not be improved, Hillsdale holding solidly, when Alma threatened her goal.

In the second half the visitors opened up an aerial attack that swept the Maroon and Cream off its feet, and counted 20 points before the period ended. A long pass Beck to O. Kirk, early in the quarter, which went for twenty yards, and a sprint of almost the same distance, gave Hillsdale her first counter.

The ball was brought out for the goal kick. The ball was grounded before the kicker realized it. Capt. Baribeau of the Alma team ran out and dropped on the ball, making it impossible to kick the goal. S. Watkins, quarterback, who was to kick the goal, then ran up and kicked Baribeau in the middle of the back, almost everyone on the field seeing the kick administered, as they were watching for the attempt at goal. The crowd immediately surged onto the field, and it was some little time before the field could be cleared and play resumed. Because of the action of the crowd, Referee Crisp refused to impose the disqualification penalty on Watkins. The affair was without question, the most unsportsmanlike action that has ever been witnessed on an Alma field, not only by Watkins, but by the crowd as well. Regardless of what Watkins might have done, action in regard to it was up to the officials, and not the crowd. Numerous town people and many college students were among the crowd that surged to the field and around the Hillsdale team when the incident took place. It was a deplorable thing that Watkins should have done what he did, but it was just as deplorable that the crowd should have taken the action that it did, without giving Referee Crisp an opportunity to impose the penalty that certainly would have come. What is more surprising perhaps, is the fact that the Hillsdale coach would leave Watkins in the game for a single minute, after the deliberate kicking fray in which he indulged, as there was no question as to the action being deliberate and not accidental.

During the balance of this quarter Kirk pulled several other passes out of the air, two of which he carried over the goal for touchdowns. Kirk kicked the goals.

In the third quarter Kirk put over another touchdown, grabbing a pass behind the goal. Watkins goaled.

SHALL WE CELEBRATE

Two years ago, on November eleventh, the booming of the guns in France and Flanders suddenly ceased. The weary troops in the front line trenches laid down their arms. In France, England, and America, the people heard the news, and broke forth in exultant celebration. An armistice had been signed. The fighting was over. They had a right to celebrate. The end for which the countries of the world had so long been fighting had at last been attained. Victory had been made a reality.

That was two years ago. Since then the ardor with which we greeted the signing of the armistice has cooled. Perhaps we have felt that all which we had expected and hoped from that act has not been realized. Perhaps we do not greet this second anniversary of Armistice day with so much exultation as we greeted the last one. But we must not lose sight of the fact that November 11, 1918, was a great day. We cannot lose sight of the fact that it ended an awful struggle, successfully for us.

And so we should observe Armistice Day. Not with exultant shouting perhaps, but with a remembrance of what that date will mean in American history, and with a feeling that we should commemorate the work which our boys, with the Allied forces, brought to an ultimate accomplishment two years ago.

Armistice Day should be a holiday. It should be a day of rejoicing. It should be marked by fitting exercises. The American Legion of Alma is planning a celebration for November eleventh. Will we, as college students, take our part? Will we show that we have not forgotten what happened in 1918? Surely, we will.

That we of Alma, have been recently required to submit to the most rigorous trials and tests as regards our college spirit, no one will question. The fact remains, however, that we have endured these trials, and the traditional ideals of old Alma still survive. We have met defeat several times, yet no one can justly say that defeat was ever taken in a cleaner, more sportsmanlike manner. Like the new ship, we were tested at sea in a storm; yet no one has seen a ship weather a storm more superbly than we did. We stood the test. Our spirit remains unbroken. Never were there a more loyal bunch of people gathered together at an institution of learning, who would fight harder or better for a common cause than our own student body at Alma.

Among other things, our freshmen have shown themselves faithful to our college spirit and tradition to the last degree. Their loyalty is unquestioned. In a quiet, unassuming and submissive manner, they have shouldered the burdens placed upon their shoulders and have executed the tasks set before them. They have shown themselves worthy of participation in the struggle for realization of Alma ideals. Their conduct on occasion, has been—with few exceptions—laudable. This passage is not, however, intended to elevate the freshmen in their own, or opinions at large. There are college traditions to fulfill; there are tasks to perform; there is hard work to do, and the freshmen are expected to do their part. There is an immeasurable amount of diligent, conscientious effort to be expended in the next seven months. This is simply to show that the serious endeavors of the freshmen so far, have been recognized, and we hope, have not been uselessly expended. May we justly be proud of our freshmen.

Our recent contests on the grid-iron have resulted for the most part in material defeat. However, numerous have been these material defeats, we may feel justly proud of the attainment of an end higher, much higher than that of mere physical victory. Our triumph is supreme. No one can question our victory, or our right to the spiritual pennant that now floats over our campus. Alma College has long been famous for her spirit, or the "pep" she displayed on occasion. Alma students, both of the past and present are proud of this spirit. They say "I am an Alma student" with the same pride as Regulus said to the Carthaginian Senate, "I am a Roman citizen;" as if there were nothing better on earth for which heart and soul might be given so unreservedly. "By their fruits ye shall know them—"

I repeat that Alma's spirit has conquered. The fruits of the struggle are victory. This triumph has shown what Alma College can do. Let it be a spur in our side, that will urge us forward in the struggle for another victory, and to the attainment and realization of even greater ends, and even higher ideals! Let us work hard for a bigger, brighter Alma.

NEW STAFF MEMBER.

The Almanian takes the greatest pleasure in this week announcing a new and valuable addition to the staff. Feeling that the paper would be much better with one other to help in the work of getting it out, we have chosen for the office of Printer's Devil one of the most capable and brilliant men in Alma, Kenneth C. Manwaring.

Have your dollar ready. The Maroon and Cream collectors will be after you again this week.

CAMPUS NOTES

Prof. Randels—How, Mr. Wyatt, do you tell your right hand from your left?

Wyatt—I don't believe a child knows.

Millet (chiming in)—My right hand faces north and my left hand faces south.

Prof. Randels—Mr. Millet has been reading the Almanac again.

Vernon Glendening of Detroit spent a few days last week visiting with his cousin, Willard Beshgetoor.

"Ping" Richards' gain was very much in evidence at the game Saturday. "Ping" came up from Detroit for the Phi Stag Banquet. He says that next semester may see him enrolled at Alma.

Our professor from Ithaca, was over Saturday.

Miss Evelyn Foster, of Ann Arbor, was the guest of her brother, Sid at the Zeta Sigma Banquet.

Olivet College was represented by J. S. Supernaw and Warren Hosmer. Mr. Supernaw came as Representative of the Adelpic Society.

Bob Dancer of Stockbridge was over to see that his younger brother was not led astray during the strenuous week end.

Audrey Kelley, Clinton Seeley and Bob Adams were familiar old figures on the campus. They all aided in reviving the old Alma pep during their few days stay.

Everyone was pleased to greet Sinclair Tebo again. It seems as though time only adds to the beauty of Tebo's smile.

Dick Bailey was back telling us all about Ann Arbor. He also says he's working hard, but we doubt it. Of course, Helen Barnes was here for the Zeta Sigma Banquet, too.

Lawrence Smalldon was on dock to lend his hand towards the good times that were shown during the past few days. Smuck says he may come back next semester.

Pauline Markham and Rosella Benson came over from Saginaw to attend the Zeta Sigma Banquet.

Norma Swift came all the way from Harbor Springs to join in the festivities of the campus.

Jennie Dduley and Lois Pettibone lent all of their good old spirit and pep to everything that went on.

Olive Batie left school-teaching at Grand Haven for a few days to let Al French take her to the Zeta Sigma Banquet.

Coach "Pug" Wood was up Saturday to look over the football squad.

"Biff" Carey of Detroit was on the campus Sunday.

"Tar" Robinson and "Ad" Wilson were campus visitors last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Parker, both old students, ex-'18, were guests at the Zeta Sigma Banquet.

LAST HOME GAME
LOST BY ALMA

Alma then came to life and carried the ball far into Hillsdale territory, and almost put over a touchdown. Inside of the ten yard line Alma was held. Two line plunges failed to give the ground, and two passes failed, the ball going to Hillsdale.

Early in the fourth quarter Hillsdale counted another touchdown. A forward pass put the Blue and White in front of the goal, and Beck, smashed through the line on the longest line smash that Hillsdale got, going six yards to the goal. Watkins failed to kick goal. Shortly after Hillsdale started another drive to the Alma goal. Alma broke up three attempts to score on forward passes, and L. Kirk was called back, and booted the ball across the up-rights for a 25-yard drop kick. This ended the scoring, but did not end the fight that Alma put up, as the Maroon and Cream made another threat at the Hillsdale goal before time was called.

On the line McNaughton, Brewer and Waggoner put up a fine brand of football that stood out clearly. The entire line, however, played in fine shape, Hillsdale finding it almost impossible to gain by line-smashing.

ALPHA THETA

On November 1, 1920, the regular meeting of the Alpha Theta Literary Society was held, continuing the study of art. Italian art formed the special phase of study for the week. Roll call was answered by the name of an Italian artist and one of his pictures. Louise Osgood then gave an excellent review of current events, touching upon many happenings of importance and interest. The aptly chosen impromptu, "The Isle of Arts," was well sketched by Elsa Struble. The rise of Italian art was outlined concretely in a paper read by Marion Chick. In her talk on "How to Judge of a Picture," Lucy Fellows presented several principles of art with which all who would truly appreciate great paintings must be familiar.

At the close of the program, all realized how much they had learned not only concerning the history and outstanding names of Italian art, but also about the requirements for a great picture. With the serving of refreshments in honor of the new girls, the meeting seemed complete. A rich field of study which is seldom explored is being opened and it doubtless will furnish the society with materials for developing a complete intellectual life.

Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. meeting held Thursday evening, Nov. 4, proved to be one of great interest to all of the members present. Dr. Brokenshire was on hand and gave us one of those real talks which he is so well noted for, one of those talks which is bound to bring results even though it may not be noticeable from the start. Let us hope that we may have many of these talks during the remainder of our year, not only from Dr. Brokenshire, but from other noted speakers on the campus as well. It is the purpose of the Y. M. C. A. officers to have as many students as possible lead the Y meetings, nevertheless there is always room for a message from the outside. The meetings so far this year are steadily growing not only in numbers but also in interest. A few weeks ago Prof. Hamilton gave a talk that started the ball rolling. Prof. Brokenshire has added his energy to the push. Now it is up to the rest of the members of Alma College to push the ball still harder and harder.
