HOMECOMING

PROGRAM SET

Two Days Celebration Program Completed. Biggest In History

The program for the two days of celebration has been completed by President Crooks and the committee in charge and is given in full in this column. This program is to mark the fortieth year of the college's life, and is incorporated with the annual Homecoming. According to advance indications, these two days will see the greatest number of alumni and old students ever gathered together on the old campus.

Starting the program on Friday, the fourth, there will be a special address to the students in the regular chapel period at 9:30. At ten o'clock the Trustees of the college will meet. The meeting will probably continue most of the afternoon as well as the morning. There will be a special luncheon at Wright Hall at noon, for specially invited guests. At dinner Friday evening at Wright Hall it is planned to have present members of the families of the original trustees of Alma College, old faculty members and their families, some of the first students of the college, and the families of the previous presidents of the institution.

The evening programs opens with a concert by the Alma College Band at seven-thirty in the Memorial Gymnasium. At eight o'clock will begin the major part of the program. Dr. W. K. Spencer, of Ionia, the senior member of the Board of Trustees, will speak on the beginnings of Alma in the Presbyteries and Synod of Michigan. Among the other speakers of the evening will be Rev. John Wirt Dunning of Kalamazoo, who was a member of the class of 1904, and Chancellor John D. Findlayson, of Tulsa University, Tulsa, Oklahoma. Representing the younger generation of graduates, Russell Wilson, principal of the Manistique High School, will be on the program.

The Homecoming football game, Hope College vs. Alma, will be played on Davis Field at two-thirty. In the evening at eight o'clock, the Homecoming Dance, an All-College party, to which all alumni and old students are urged to come, is planned in the Memorial Gymnasium.

The faculty is hoping for the biggest two days in the history of the school. The student body is thrilled at the prospect of seeing so many alumni back on the campus, for it seems to us that to be an alumnus is very wonderful. We have heard so much about you during our years here that we feel that we know you. Perhaps we have never met you personally, only knowing you by name or tradition, but be assured that we

WEEK FEATURED BY DOPE UPSETS

Kalamazoo College attempted to save her Varsity Friday for the Albion game this week and in the first quarter Hillsdale slipped over two touchdowns and when the Kazoo Varsity went in the second quarter the Hornets found Harwood's men fighting tooth and nail and the advantage couldn't be pulled down, the 'Dales taking a 12 to 6 victory, which aids Alma in her hunt for a second straight M. I. A. A. football title.

Mt. Pleasant Normal defeated Western Normal 18 to 12, so it looks as though the Armistice battle here November 11 might find Mt. Pleasant and Alma battling for an all state minor college title, as Central is now almost certain of the championship of the new collegiate loop.

DRAMA CLUB PRESENTS PLAYS

Three Plays To Be Given In Chapel Thursday Evening

The Drama Club of Alma College will present three one-act plays on Thursday evening at eight o'clock in the college chapel. The club has been working on the production of these plays for some time. They are now nearing perfection and it is promised that they will be in excellent shape for presentation on Thursday evening.

The three plays to be presented are: "The Boor," "The Monkey's Paw," and "Loud Silence." "The Boor" is a Russian melodrama, with the characteristics of the typical Russian drama. The superstitions set forth in "The Monkey's Paw" make this play a thriller from beginning to end. "Loud Silence" should be particularly interesting to the student body, as its author is a member of the Drama Club. It features the old triangle. The casts for these plays are almost entirely made up from the new members of the organization.

In order to defray the expense incurred in the production of the three plays a nominal fee of twenty-five cents will be charged for admission.

In the meeting of the program committee last week it was decided that "Icebound" would be the play which the Club will present on December 2, at the Strand Theatre. Richard Crowell was elected to direct the play. Manuscripts have been ordered and received and the rehearsals will start within ten days.

MASS MEETING HELD BEFORE OLIVET GAME

The mass meeting for the Olivet game was held in the college chapel Friday evening at seven-fifteen. The Alma College Band furnished the music for the occasion and the few loyal students supplied the noise.

It was a very poorly attended pep meeting. Not even all the freshmen were there and it should be an offense of great proportions for a freshman to fail to appear at an affair of this kind. The Band started things going with a snappy tune. Louie Zimmerman called the very small crowd to the front seats in order to get the most noise possible. In the first attempt at organized yelling it was seen that something very important was lacking, and the house detective soon discovered the missing element was Chief Arozian's well-known voice, whose stentorian tones add so much to the volume of a cheer. After a few cheers, "Alma will shine tonight," by the Band, and some more yells, Cheer Leader Zimmerman called on Red Clark, '27, for a few words. Red gave a short fight talk in the most approved oratorical method. Christine Pomeroy told about the activities of the freshman class in keeping up the school spirit. She promised undying loyalty from every member of her class. To demonstrate the loyalty and spirit of the frosh more concretely, Miller led the yearlings in a yell, which we must record as a bit weak. To show them how it should be done, the rest of the people present let themselves out on some lusty "rahs." And then in perfect accord the whole assemblage, under the leadership of the Chicago lad, got off a loud "locomotive."

The Band took the center of the

SMOKER HELD AT PHI HOUSE

Freshmen and New Men Are Entertained by Frat

As Vachel Lindsey might say,

The freshmen came in two by two, Good bye, my lover, good bye. They took their coats and their pots off too,

Good bye, my lover, good bye.

Once inside the Phi House, everyone was left to their own devices; which for the most part, consisted of playing bridge. When all were assembled, President Bixby gave an official speech of welcome, the texture of which need not here be recorded.

Then the bar was thrown open, and Bennett's Blues Dispensers broke forth in too tickling harmony. Everyone settled down to their B. C. D. (Bridge, Cider, and Doughnuts), and the evening got under way. Bartenders Wood and Pomeroy dove under the bar, and miraculously appeared with cigars and cigarettes. Somebody opened the window, and as soon as the room was blue with smoke, Wood struggled drunkenly to the top of the bar and moaned out The Shooting of Dan McGrew.

As soon as Prof. Journey finished crying over this sad masterpiece, the festivities were resumed in the form of Home Baked Pumpkin Pie. By this time, everyone was so full of smoke, cider and doughnuts, that the party began to take on some of the nature of an endurance contest. Many of the boys were observed to wander out into the moonlight and admire the great above.

Ham Pruyne was pretty well warmed up by this time, and put on a dance so good that even Professor Clack stopped playing bridge to applaud. If Clara Bow had been there, she surely would have been jealous.

We don't know who put the face on the bar room floor, but we suspect it must have been Wood, for it had a pile of freckles. At sometime during the evening, everyone got a chance to wander through the upstairs rooms, and spot where his coat was hidden. There was also much signing of memory books, and telling of old tales of the demons who had infested these regions before our times. Tails of Phil and Philis, and Bill F. Fulcher's dog, and false teeth in the Wright Hall soup, and what not?

As the evening grew older, and those present grew soggier, a need for healthful recreation was felt. Boxing gloves were taken from the wall and the fun began. No one seemed to be in excellent shape, so the rounds were very short and snappy. The nearest approach to a casualty came when Death Leichy and Brute Wilkinson both missed terrible right hooks and bumped heads. The house shook with the crash. Wort Randels challenged Kent MacGregor, but Kent was excused from accepting on account of the impending game with Olivet. Bixby and Crowell put on a might fast round to end up the evening. About eleven o'clock everyone went home to study their French or have some other kind of nightmares.

It seemed to be the consensus of opinion that all present had a good time and most wished we could have a smoker every night in the week, but in the morning, that dark brown taste of too much tobacco convinced us that perhaps it was all for the best that we couldn't.

HILLSDALE IS NEXT FOR ALMA GRIDDERS

The Campbellmen will invade Hillsdale Saturday and there expect to annex the third straight Michigan Intercollegiate game.

The battle is certain to be a hard-fought one, however, as the 'Dales gave evidence of real strength in defeating Toledo University by a score of 19 to 0, and undoubtedly have been showing an increasing strength since that early season game.

The game will also give an indication of the comparative strength of Kalamazoo and Alma, as Kalamazoo met Hawood's outfit last Saturday at Hillsdale. This comparison will be most welcome in view of the approaching game with the Kalamazoo collegians, which now seems certain to be the contest that will decide the Michigan Intercollegiate honors.

FACULTY MAKES CHANGES IN RULE

Finds Injustice in Present Ruling. Corrective Change Made

It was announced to the students last spring by the faculty that any cut in classes on Monday or Friday would be counted double. The regular number of cuts, one more than the number of class hours per week, was not increased. The object of the ruling was to cut down the number of week-end excursions of the students to their homes and to other distant places. Last year there was an excessive amount of this sort of thing. There were week-ends last year when the campus was almost deserted, so many people had gone home. The faculty decided, and we agree with them, that such a system was very bad, both for the school and for the individual student. In order to cut down the number of week-end trips, therefore, they put into action this system of double cuts on Mondays and Fridays.

But in the workings of this rule, it was soon realized by the faculty that the double cut system was forcing certain injustices on students who either lived in town or did not go home for the week-ends. Any cuts they might take on the days which the faculty had ruled against would be counted as double. The rule was striking people whom the teachers had no desire to strike. And so, at the faculty meeting last week, where the question was brought up, it was decided that double cuts would be counted against a student only when the student was out of town over the week-end. If a cut is necessarily taken on Friday or Monday, it may be counted as a single cut only if the Dean's office is assured that the student was not out of town. In this way the rule does not affect persons who do not make a practice of going out of Alma every week-end, but still governs the students for whom the edict was drafted.

Anything which will keep the whole student body on the campus throughout the week-end is a good thing. A person who is only on the campus five days out of seven fails to enter into the spirit of the school. He leaves on Friday and comes back on Monday and spends two days on each end of his journey getting ready to go or getting back into the swing of things. He misses a big share of his college life, because almost all of the social events come during the week-end. He is not around long enough to get interested in the institution and its students, and because he is not interested he things there is something wrong with the school. Incidentally, he can not hope to get his studies properly.

In the new drafting of the rule the injustice of the old form has been dispensed with, and we expect it to function very well in cutting down the number of week-end excursions.

TEAMS FIND ALMA POPULAR

Football teams hit Alma frequently and often this past week end. In addition to the Olivet team which came Friday, Grand Rapids Union High spent part of Friday here, working out on the college field while enroute to Saginaw where it faced Arthur Hill 21 to 6. Western Normal stopped off for a time in Alma going to and returning from Mt. Pleasant. Several other gridiron teams also went through Alma during the two days.

OLIVET FALLS TO ALMA TEAM

Maroon and Cream Warriors Win Second M. I. A. A. Tilt

Playing heads-up football all of the way the Alma collegians defeated Olivet Saturday to the tune of 38 to 0, but it must be acknowledged that it was the customary Olivet team that the Campbellmen were facing, one that would scrap and battle regardless of what might be the score.

Injuries from the Albion game necessitating Karpp, quarterback, Arozian, tackle, and Erickson, guard, viewing the game from the sidelines, but their successors played in a way that was highly commendable, winning the plaudits of the crowd for the fight and pep that they displayed from the time that they started until until they were hauled out of the scoring spree by Coach Campbell to give some other men of the squad a chance against the Crimson.

After the first touchdown was scored in the opening chapter of the little sixty minute argument these and other changes came so fast in the Alma lineup that it was difficult to keep pace with them. They continued until only Hawthorne of the regulars was in the fray, and even then did not cease as man after man on the squad was sent into the fray to get a little toughening under fire.

After viewing the contest of October 18—that battle royal at Albion—the Olivet game seemed a tame affair, a tea party in comparison, failing to furnish the kick for some hundreds of the fans who were behind the outfit when it stopped Albion so completely, comparable as is water with the stuff that was prescribed by Volstead. Yet there was action and there was plenty of good football, but the grim determination of two teams to win, which was had in the Albion mix-up was seemingly missing in the Olivet fray, and Olivet did not show the strength to force the issue at any stage, even though her team battled and battled hard against big odds.

To start the game Alma kicked over the Olivet goal and the ball was put in play on the Crimson 20 yard stripe. Three plays failed by a yard to give first down and Hawley punted to the Alma 47 yard mark. Lamb kicked off 9½ and MacGregor made it first down with 4 more. Conlen got 5 but Lamb lost two of the five. Conlen got 5 again and Hawthorne hit off end for 4 and first down, on the Olivet 26. Lamb made 1 and an Olivet offside gave 5 more. Two line plunges by MacGregor made it first down on the Crimson 15 yard mark. Lamb made 3 and Hawthorne went off end 12 yards for a touchdown. The try for point was missed. Score Alma 6, Olivet 0.

When Pezet kicked over the goal it went in play on the Olivet 20. Three plays again gave Olivet 9 yards and she punted to Hawthorne on the Alma 48. An Olivet offside and two plays off tackle by Lamb made it first down on the Olivet 39. Held, Alma punted to the Olivet 10 and it was returned 9 yards. After Olivet punted Alma started a march that was stopped when Joy intercepted an Alma pass on the Olivet 22. Stewart lost 4 as the quarter ended.

Two In Second Quarter

An exchange of punts marked the opening of the second quarter and after Olivet punted a second time Alma got the ball on the Olivet 42 yard mark. Alma marched to the Olivet 7 and then got 15 yards for holding. Holdship slipped a short pass to Hawthorne and then Holdship passed to Simmons, 9 yards, who trotted 5 more over the Olivet goal. The attempt for point failed.

Jacobs returned the kickoff 10 yards to the Olivet 23. Stewart and Hawley lost 3 yards and Hawley went off end to get it back. He punted and Hawthorne returned the kick 25 yards to the Olivet 23. Three plays cost 8 yards and then Holdship passed 32 yards to Pezet for a touchdown. Hawthorne went off end and over for the point. Score Alma 19, Olivet 0.

Pezet Gets Another

Three plays, the third with a fumble attached, cost 7 yards and Alma punted over the Olivet goal as the fourth quarter got under way. It was Olivet's ball on her own 20. Olivet carried it 6 yards on two plays and then Kittendorf recovered an Olivet fumble on the Crimson 30 line. Gil-

Alma won the Albion game by a score of seven to nothing. The game with Albion is supposed to have been the biggest obstacle in the way of another football championship. The team, and indeed, the whole student body, has been pointing to that game for the last month. Certainly such a great victory should be celebrated in some way. But what happened after the gang got back into town Tuesday night? Absolutely nothing.

In the old days a score like the one brought back last week would have been the excuse for a great deal of noise at least. There would probably have been a bonfire built on the campus somewhere, and every student in college would have been in the gang around the fire. The celebration would have lasted far into the night. We can remember 'way back when (and when we start remembering we feel very, very ancient) Alma had a great team, beating every team on the schedule by most decisive scores. After every game there was a very solemn burial service held in front of Wright Hall, and the vanquished opponent was interred with all due ceremonies. At the end of the season there was a row of neat graves at the edge of the road across from the girl's dormitory, with the impressive scores printed on the headstones. Those silent graves remained an ever-present reminder throughout the year, telling every passerby of the powers of Alma on the gridiron. Victories in other years were marked only by the ashes of gigantic bonfires on Davis Field or on the pavement in front of Wright Hall, but very few victories went by without having some real recognition.

But we, in 1927, win from our oldest rival, Albion, in a great game, and we are so happy we can hardly talk, yet we come home and go silently to bed. Can it be that we are tired of winning? Perhaps we have won so much in the last few years that we are tired of victory? Perhaps we have won so much in the last few years that we are getting used to it, and fail to get the old-time thrill out of a favorable score. If that is true, then it is time we were defeated. Incidentally, if that is true, then defeat is not far off. It takes two or three years of losing teams to make a winning team appreciated, it seems. This year we have a winning team. It is up to the student body to give the team real support. Student spirit

SPENCER TALKS IN CHAPEL

Professor Spencer led chapel Friday morning.

In his service he included a short talk on reverence, with a few remarks on the reverence shown in different pieces of artistic endeavor. He illustrated the right attitude of reverence by a great painting, in which, he said, was depicted the hand of God. The Almighty Hand was not painted clearly, but with the merest suggestion of form, and in the treatment there was a majesty and power incorporated. A very poor attitude of reverence, he stated, was the one exhibited in the moving picture, "Ben-Hur," which showed for several days at one of the theatres last week. He took issue with the depicting of the Christ in any realistic fashion as the film did. In the film the person of Jesus was suggested merely by an arm, a human arm, it is true, which was all that was seen of the Saviour. This picturization, said Mr. Spencer, was not only more than a little irreverent, but it was in bad taste. The speaker had his ideas well in hand, and he presented them well and sincerely. Whether or not those in the audience agreed with Professor Spencer in his arguments is a different thing.

Perhaps our idea of reverence is limited by our theological background, which is not very complete; perhaps it is just another instance of the foolish younger generation, but we thought that "Ben-Hur" was unquestionably just and reverent in its treatment. There was no place in the picture where more than a suggestion of the body of Christ was seen, and after all, His body was a human body. The hand and arm, which was called upon to represent the Christ in most of the scenes, was certainly a benevolent and kindly arm in its actions and its behavior. It seemed to us as we watched the unfolding of the story, that the producers of the film were to be congratulated on their handling of the difficult picturization.

To Professor Spencer goes the credit for making the first chapel speech of the year about which we thought afterward!

ABERNETHY'S FATHER DIES

Mr. H. Olin Abernethy, field representative for the college received word Friday evening that his father had died at his home in Hickory, North Carolina. His father's death came very suddenly. Mr. Abernethy had received a telegram telling him that his father was dangerously ill, and while he was making preparations to start for Hickory, the second telegram arrived, telling him of his father's death. Mr. Abernethy left immediately for his home.

The Almanian, in behalf of the students of Alma College, wishes to extend their deepest sympathy to their good friend in this recent bereavement.

Mr. Paul Gesner, of the class of '25, is employed on the staff of the Jersey Journal, Jersey City. He graduated from the Columbia School of Journalism last year, where he made an enviable record. He left a position as assistant financial writer for the United Press to accept the place on the staff of the Jersey City paper.

OLIVET FALLS TO ALMA TEAM

bert lacked inches of first down on two plays and then Wagner took it for 3 to make first down on the 18. Simmons was caught holding on the play and it was Alma's ball on the Olivet 33. Hawthorne heaved one through the ozone to Pezet who stepped over the Olivet goal for his second touchdown. The goal attempt failed. Score Alma 31, Olivet 0.

Null returned the next kickoff 25 yards to the Olivet 32 yard line where Gilbert on the first play intercepted an Olivet pass. Gilbert made 2 and Lamb added 3. Holdship slid off end and raced down the field 24 yards to the goal for the final touchdown. He passed to Wagner for the extra point. Score Alma 38, Olivet 0.

Alma was seemingly headed for another when time was called. Holdship had just passed on the Olivet 42 to Wagner who was brought down on the Olivet 20 as the game ended.

Hawthorne, Lamb, Gilbert, MacGregor, Angell and all of the rest looked good. For Olivet Null, Captain Stewart and Wood featured.

stage with one of its well-rendered pieces, and earned a big "Yes, Band" for its trouble. Following some more cheers for the team Skin Frazer handed out a hot pep talk, which he says was not very good because he had so little time to prepare it. Professor Ewer told the crowd in no uncertain terms just what the Band was going to do Saturday to keep up the old spirit. After a yell for Ed Karpp, the poor boy who was hurt in the game against Albion on Tuesday (send checks to The Almanian and they will be given immediately to his relief), and the singing of the Football Song the mass meeting was over.

know you. So if you happen to overhear a stage whisper while you are here, giving your old nickname and your private college history, don't be surprised. You are really more important back here than you think.

Literary societies are planning to take care of their alumni. There will be people you know and plenty of room and time to talk the old times over. If you can possibly stay over to the Dance Saturday night, there will be accommodations at your frat house.

The game with Hope is going to be a good one. Alma is doped to win, but it is certain to be a real battle; you know how a good Dutchman can fight. Hope has a heavy team to send against Campbell's men in the fray. You will be proud of the team this year. They are a hard-fighting, clean, alert aggregation from the kick-off to the final gun. It will bring back memories of the teams in the old days, when men were men—and you went to Alma.

We feel sure that you will enjoy it if you come back to the College for Character for the two days. The dates are November 4th and 5th. Shall we see you then?

FROSH DANCE POSTPONED

Contrary to announcements made in the Almanian and through other sources, there was no freshman dance Saturday evening. The affair was necessarily postponed because of the inability of the sponsors to secure a suitable orchestra. The announcement of the postponement was made
