Reading Program Here To Stay, States Boyd

Seniors, Juniors Have 27 Median;
Frosh At 25 Beat Sophs At 23

By Millie Howe

The test results for the required reading selections held Thursday, December 3, have been calculated, and plans for next semester's program are underway.

Both Dean William Boyd and Dr. Henry Klugh agree that the test results were encouraging. "But," says Dr. Klugh, "they aren't as good as we would like to see them."

Notice of one, or possibly two, of the titles for next semester's reading will be given before Christmas vacation. Whether or not additional titles are assigned will depend on the faculty's appraisal of the difficulty of the first two books selected. The next testing is planned for around the middle of February, according to Dr. Klugh.

Before all future tests, it has been suggested that organized discussion groups be held which might help to raise the level of understanding and test results.

The items for the first test on the reading program, which were to determine the understanding of the required reading selections, were compiled by Dr. Klugh and screened by a faculty committee.

Students received notices of their achievement on the first test via campus mail from the Registrar's office. Results are classified as "excellent," "satisfactory," and "unsatisfactory." The percentile scores (which indicate the percentage of scores lower than yours) are also indicated.

The median (middle score in the distribution) was a little over 25 out of 50 items correct. The senior and junior classes each had a median of 27; the sophomores, 23; and the freshmen, 25.

Dean Boyd wishes to call special attention to the standing of the freshman class since he incorrectly stated its position in an announcement to the students Tuesday. Scores will be averaged for the various campus living units at a later date.

Approximately 10% of the students received "excellent" scores, and an equal amount had "unsatisfactory" notations. The remaining 80 per cent of the students had "satisfactory" scores. The distribution of scores was approximately normal, according to Dr. Klugh.

The test results will appear on students' permanent records and will be in the words of Dean Boyd "one of a number of indications of ability and achievement which the college accumulates."

However, an unsatisfactory result from this test will not See—Reading—page 2

Senior Women Top Semester 146 Avgs.

Registrar Releases Latest Figures; Frosh. Women Slide

Senior women lead the campus point standings by groups for the spring semester (146), according to information released this week by the Registrar's office. Ranking second was Bruske House, with Delta Sigma Phi fraternity and Alpha Theta sorority ranking a very close third and fourth, respectively.

All seniors ranked in the 5th place at 1.78; all juniors in the 13th place with 1.55; all sophomores ranked 24th at 1.40; and all freshmen were in the 31st place with an overall 1.25.

In the last place were freshmen men with an overall of 1.16. This is an improvement over the last place average of 1.01 held by the same group during the fall semester of last year.

These statistics indicate that for a whole academic year there was no group which collectively had an average below a one point. The high for semester 145 was 1.8, the high for semester 146 was 1.93. A low of 1.01 for the previous semester rose to 1.16.

In comparing the averages of semester 146 with 145 Delta

Sigma Phi fraternity and Alpha Theta sorority show decided improvement as they raised their respective averages from 1.55 to 1.79 (Delt Sigs) and 1.57 to 1.79, thus climbing from 6th place to 3rd in the case of the Delt Sigs, and from 8th place to the fourth in the case of the Thetas.

As a whole, semester 146 showed standings generally on the rise. There were only three groups which took dips in their standings. The most disastrous of these dives was by the freshman women who slid from first place with a previous average of 1.8, to the 25th place with an average of 1.3.

The two other drops may be regarded as a result of the slide by the freshman women. Pioneer Hall (freshman women) dropped from 1.51 to 1.42. The Freshman class as a whole slid from 1.42 to 1.25.

Below is a complete list comparing the averages for semesters 145 and the spring semester (146):

REB's yell - - -

After walking through a Gelston lobby full of BMOCs (Beautiful Material for Our College), it is good to reflect on the objective reality postulated by the presented pulchritude, in regards to the fact that not all of our coeds, by a long shot, spend their evenings neath the shade of the old chapel rear.

Ah, the foibles of our society! Hand-holding is so much more delicious when done in the dark. Ties of male companions can be straightened, collars adjusted, books referred to, intellectual conversations complete with gestures can be initiated between the sexes most easily in the frigid blackness just beyond lighted doorways. At least, this is how it appears to one as one gallups discreetly by.

What is the nature of fresh, young love that it must perpetuate the ancient and honorable custom of symbolic secrecy?

Behold yonder couple in the twilight zone. An aggregate of 430 pounds, safely hidden behind a 4-inch tree.

Yet again! Else you may miss seeing the couple (discussing differential equations) hidden by that 6-inch offset in the building wall. If one did not know better one might get the wrong idea, for the poor kids almost had to embrace in order to fit the available space.

But see! Protruding past yon potted plant (loungeing is appropriate in the lounge, of course), three feet! Oh there's the other one. Note the cobbled conversation:

Saddle shoes, heel on toe: "You're not the only fish in the pond" (which interpreted means there will be more required reading).

Black male oxfords side by side, toes straight up: "Aw honey, just one more kiss" (interpreted: the faculty never gives us a break).

Female saddles, quick break-away to flat-footed stance on coffee-table: "Not unless you promise (here wind rustles the palms obscuring voice)" (fractional translation: I bet one is two vol—).

Male oxfords, wilting slowly toward the saddles: "Beautiful, beautiful, m-m-m-m" (translation: Naw, I hear they're gonna recommend (?) (there is no appropriate English translation for the word "m-m-m-m").

From time to time familiar phrases come from the bashful brogans: "engagement ring" (long-range planning); "Friday night date" (midsemester examination); "solo time" (academic standards).

See? Thou dried-up prune who lovest no more, the language is UNIVERSAL, can't thou not comprehend?

Isn't it wonderful! All this, and Walden Two.

Reading

be of extreme consequence unless the overall pattern of future reading test results is unsatisfactory.

For the freshman class, a satisfactory pattern of scores is a graduation requirement. "To upperclassmen, an important consequence of their records on this program is that their performance will be appraised whenever the College is required to make judgments concerning individual students," according to Dean Boyd.

Dean Boyd feels that anyone who read the selections and understood the thesis of each should have been able to do satisfactory work on the test. The phrase "reading for pleasure," which was made concerning one of the readings, may have been misinterpreted. The enjoyment in reading is comprehension, not just superficial scanning.

Says Dean Boyd, "I think that it is safe to say that the reading program is here to stay. Studies have repeatedly shown that college students read very little except for the assigned text books . . . We hope to introduce you to a wide range of reading."

Woodard Shows Slides

Computer Is Being 'Taught' to Translate Scientific Articles From Russian

An electronic mental giant scientific problems was ready for work this week on the University of California campus.

A segment of the Berkeley faculty, on hand for a preview, heard a prediction that the newest campus addition would be able to translate a whole Soviet scientific journal in less than an hour.

The device, an International Business Machines 704 computer, is looked to for determining the life span of stars and for providing answers to many questions related to nuclear particles and their interactions. The computer, occupying in the basement of Campbell Hall as much floor space as a three bedroom modern house, is of a type in use by a number of laboratories and industries in the country.

California and IBM spokesmen said, however, that its installation here gave the Berkeley campus "more computer power devoted to scientific problems" than any other American university center.

Preparation Takes Years

It will be years before the computer can actually begin flashing the lights of its "brain cells" and recording in English the words of a Soviet scientist.

Dr. Sydney M. Lamb, lecturer in linguistics, is developing the program for the machine translation of Russian articles. He and his colleagues are analyzing up to 1,000,000 words or parts of words to provide a workable mechanical dictionary.

In this process of formulating translation rules, English representations will have to be found for the Soviet words or parts of the words. When it is ready to begin translation, the computer, will receive instructions in the form of mathematical symbols representing words or syllables, fed to it on IBM cards.

"Ninety per cent of the work will precede the actual mechanical translating," Dr. Lamb has estimated. "We figure we should be able to translate at a cost of less than one cent a word, if we figure the cost of the machine."

Rep. County Chairman To Speak Here Tuesday

The Young Republican Club will meet next Tuesday, December 15, in room 212 of the Science Building at 8:00 p.m.

Mr. Fortino, Republican County Chairman, will speak about canvassing, a vital part of any political program, showing how the Young Republican Club of Alma College can contribute to the over all outlook of party politics through its program and co-operation with the major political party.

To quote the president of the club, "The opportunity is open for all students to learn about and participate in one of the greatest parts of our American heritage, 'political parties.' Come. Participate. Join. The club needs you, your co-operation and your ideas."

Letters to the Editor

December 10, 1959

Whether you like it or not, you will receive a yearbook, once a year, each year, you attend ALMA. Over and over again you will see the same repetition of faces and read about re-enacted events most likely.

Let's get on the ball, burst the editor's bubble of self-importance, and drop this quaint, archaic practice. It costs too much money and lacks student interest of any sort.

Yesterday, as editor for 1960, I was asked to submit a tentative budget for the 1961 SCOTSMAN so the business office could obtain the funds. $7,200 is a lot of money. Is the SCOTSMAN worth it?

You, the student body, pay for the yearbook. You should decide if you want it.

It seems doubtful that you want the SCOTSMAN for two reasons:

1. The lack of student participation is critical. We have made the opportunity to work as convenient as possible and have spent hours promoting interest through the bulletin board.

However, we have only to meet with the editors of the Almanian and Pine River to gain sympathy.

2. I took over the position of editor without ever working on the SCOTSMAN. Because this is a decidedly disadvantageous position, I promised Dr. Swanston that I would break in an editor for 1961. I am up against a blank wall. Creative students just don't want to bother.

The reason for this is, I am certain, the lack of student interest and help.

It seems strange that such a sum should be set aside for such an ineffectual activity.

In view of the facts, I submit that the yearbook should be dropped; but, in truth, I hope future student interest will prove the facts wrong.

Respectfully,
 Brian Westveer
 Editor, SCOTSMAN '60

Dear Editor,

Committee of the Vespers, I wish to extend a personal invitation to the campus community to attend this Sunday's candlelight vespers service. The service will start promptly at 6:30 in the evening and will last for only about thirty or forty-five minutes at the most.

Everyone is encouraged to attend since this is a very special Christmas service. Dress will be casual, so don't worry about having to dress up in your Sunday best.

Thank you,
 Jim Sorenson
 Chairman, Vespers Committee

Each girl participating will bring a final gift for her buddy to the party, and only then will she discover the identity of the girl who has been her secret buddy.

There will be square and folk dancing in Tyler Auditorium Sunday night at 7:15.

Everyone is invited.

MULTI-DISNEY'S
THIRD MAN ON THE MOUNTAIN

Five Alma College students have had their poetry accepted for publication in the Annual Anthology of College Poetry. The almaniac will bring the work of these students to the reading public.

Below are the poems of Julie Brinker, Bad Axe, sophomore; and Beverly Radford, St. Clair Shores, junior.

A SOPHOMORE'S ESCAPE

I would truly like to know
What life is all about;
And dock this heavy boat I row
Across the sea of doubt.
A day, a night, a year goes by
And people come and go,
I look at life and heave a sigh
And continue on to row.
Oh how I'd like to drop these oars
And scramble o'er the brink!
A life that's filled with fun I'd score,
And leave my boat to sink.

—Julie Brinker

SEPARATIO A MENSA ET THORO

The thread becomes increasingly taut
Conclusively breaks asunder,
Severing two worlds
After many years of patient
Winding
Strange, isn't it, that this can occur
After such a long period;
So many years of perservation and tenacious
Binding?
But more is infallible, and
Pressures are overbearing and myread,
And the thread is frayed
From the amarathine battering
That has attended the Twining.
At last the sustaining thread has rent
Bowed by the weight of frustration,
And the two dissevered parts each unwhole,
Travel distant ways,
In the process a lifetime
Unsigning.

Boyd Speaks On Reading Tests At S.C. Meeting

Dean Boyd was present at the Student Council meeting on Tuesday and made a correction in the announcement given that morning in Chapel. The original announcement placed the Freshman class below the Sophomore class in performance on the test. The reverse was true. Dean Boyd also commented on the remarks made about penalization for failure to pass the tests. Repeated failure to pass the tests will not exclude an upper-classman from graduation, but may result in the college refusing to support the graduate. No freshman will be required to retake the test, however, failure to pass the test satisfactorily should indicate to the Freshman a need to study the readings more thoroughly in the future. Action may be taken against Freshmen who repeatedly fail on these tests.

Two of the readings for next semester will be announced to the student body before Christmas vacation. Dean Boyd said that opinions regarding the testing program and the selection of reading material would be welcomed by the faculty.

A group of 36 students, Dean and Mrs. Boyd and Mr. and Mrs. Porter, traveled down to Detroit Thursday to see Archibald MacLeish's "J. B." at Wayne University.

This year's probable starting five include: Charles Barge, Dave Peters, Ferris Saxton, Jim Northrup and Butch Cantrell. That's Head Coach Wayne Hintz on the end.

WITHOUT SAXTON

Scots Open Conference Competition

Injuries to two key players have added to Coach Hintz's headaches. The Scots, who carry a 0-3 record into the first MIAA contest of the 1959-60 season against Kalamazoo, will play without star guard, Ferris Saxton, who was injured on the recent road trip. Freshman guard, Charles Barge, is also hampered by an ankle injury.

After losing 73-45 to Central, Alma went on the road. This too proved disastrous as they were beaten 91-75 at Wooster and 81-55 at Youngstown.

Saxton was injured in the Wooster game and had to sit out the Youngstown game and will probably miss the next two games. Barge played despite the painful injury.

Despite the gloom of the defeats, however, there were also some bright spots. Dave Peters, Len Wozniak, and Tom McPhillips all played well.

Peters, who showed great promise as a freshman did not play very much last year but this year he proved that he still had the form which made him an All-Stater in high school. Peters scored 21 points against Wooster, his highest output in two years.

Wozniak, the 6' 8" freshman from Thurston, played so well that he earned a starting berth against Kalamazoo. Hintz maintains that the lanky freshman will improve as he gains experience, but even the coach must have been pleasantly surprised by the rapid progress.

McPhillips, who seems to have established himself as a very capable reserve, and is fighting for a starting berth, scored 5 and 10 points in the two games, respectively, and looked good under the boards against the much taller opposition.

The Youngstown game was quite close until the Scot's big man, Butch Cantrell, went out with five personals in the first half.

Without Saxton and Cantrell, the "tall" man was 6'3" Jim Northrup, who played a tremendous game scoring 25 points at Youngstown and 17 at Wooster. It was an uneven battle, however, as Youngstown's two 6 foot 6 rebounders controlled the boards.

Last year's basketball captain and inspirational leader, Butch Cantrell.

Cantrell Alma's Top Rebounder

Butch Cantrell, the Captain of last year's squad was named the team's most inspirational leader by his teammates. The 6 foot 4 inch junior from Kellogg well deserved this honor.

Last year he led the team with more than eleven rebounds per game and scored an average of 10 points per game. He played and was outstanding in a position which is usually handled by men three and four inches taller.

At Kellogg High School, Cantrell played four sports and earned ten letters. He was chosen for the All-Conference team.

Besides being an excellent rebounder, Cantrell is also a fine defensive player.

After graduation, Butch, who is majoring in Physical Education, plans to go into teaching and coaching.
