Fritz Schulz

Bob Beltz Wins First Place State Extempore Speech

Wonderful Country Says Fritz Schulz

Fritz Schulz, Alma sophomore, was born in San Paulo City, Brazil. His parents Helmut and Margarida Schulz, have one other child, eleven-year-old Ronaldo.

Fritz completed the equivalent of our high school quite high in his class. The Brazilian school system differs from ours, however, in that it is run like a European school. It involves four years of elementary work, a year of preparatory schooling, four years of junior high, followed by four years of high school. During this time, three languages are required: English, Spanish, and French. Aside from these, Fritz's native language is Portuguese.

Mr. Schulz, Fritz's father, is self-employed as a typewriter dealer.

Having always wanted to see America, Fritz entered this country in April of 1957 under the sponsorship of family friends who live in Midland. There he spent the next few months doing typewriter repair work. Winner of an Alma scholarship while in Brazil, Fritz entered Alma College that fall.

Says Fritz of Alma, "It's a wonderful college." He finds the student body and faculty very friendly.

Though he has not definitely decided on a major, this young man is considering Chemistry. His definite minors are German and Mathematics.

Fritz is secretary-treasurer of the German Club. His main hobbies include soccer and reading in Portuguese.

Fritz misses the warm climate of Brazil—69 degrees in the winter—and dislikes the cold and snow. In talking about his country he notes that it is the world's greatest coffee producer, and is famous for its jungles and the intriguing Amazon River. Before the addition of Alaska, Brazil was larger than the United States. See—FRITZ SCHULZ—page 3

Speech Department Brings High Honors To College As Taped Speech Enters Nat'l Contest

First place in the Intercollegiate Peace Speech Association came to Alma College January 10 when speech major Robert Beltz, Grosse Pointe senior, delivered his topic "Red China and World Peace" at the state meeting at Western Michigan College.

"It has been at least five years since Alma has taken a first in state competition," stated M. Harold Mickle, head of the speech department. Records going back further than 1952 were not available so it was unable to determine whether or not Beltz's performance was a "first" in Alma history.

Robert Beltz

Prizes were given by the Knights of Pythias, making a total of 12 monetary awards.

Beltz was coached by Professor Harold Mickle, Head of the Speech Department. Alma's other entries in the Peace Extempore and Oratory contest were in oratory; Dave Petryna, Detroit sophomore and Sally Townsend, Detroit freshman, who was under the coaching of Mrs. Rebecca Mickle. Also Suzanne Keck, Saginaw freshman was in extempore under the direction of Professor Mickle.

Medea Review Hints Great Performance

(Note: the following comments are based upon a rehearsal, minus lighting, sound effects, costumes, Medea's voice, and most important of all, an audience.)

The Alma College community will be richer this week for witnessing a production of the ancient Greek tragedy Medea in a splendid modern version by Robinson Jeffers. No poet writing today displays such kinship with the violent and elemental forces working in Medea as does Jeffers. He has contributed memorable metaphors linking the human world with the animal, and has designed a play more dramatically effective by dividing the once continuous action into two acts, the first containing the manufacturing of malice in Medea's mind, and the second the commitment of acts so heinous as to be unbelievable if our own day did not produce sufficient parallels.

Medea in any version is strangely modern. It is a pre-Christian story, but the moral forces operative then are the same ones operative today, and the self-destruction wrought through self-will and self-pity would be the same today as then. The play is difficult and highly serious, and the director, Paul Storey, deserves praise for selecting and tackling it, and for choosing a cast capable of its production.

There are numerous themes in Medea worthy of consideration. The danger of a play of such force is that the subtle meanings be lost in the overwhelming passion. Medea can be both emotionally plugging

Macs Conference To Be At Adrian

Saturday January 17, the Michigan Association of College Student Governments will hold a conference workshop on college problems at Adrian College at Adrian.

Bob Ludtke, President of the Alma College Student Council, is Vice President of this organization.

Each participating college sends questions and problems to the conference to be discussed at this time. Alma College's number one question is on proper attire for meals. The second one involves ways to improve campus enthusiasm.

Delegates from the Alma College Student Council are Bob Ludtke, Gregory Senior; George Cobb, Detroit Junior; and "Chip" McLellan, Paw Paw Freshman.

The Student Council also voted to adopt the constitution of the U.S.N.S.A., the United States National Students Association.

Humanities Display At Adm. Building

Christmas vacation found the majority of Humanities 11 students "busy as bees." The 170 students taking this course were given the choice of either writing two short essays or else doing a creative work. One hundred and fifty did the creative work. They could work in any medium of the five major arts: music, architecture, literature, painting, or sculpture.

Many types of work were produced. Some of them were water paintings, oil paintings, floor plans, scale models of buildings, chalk drawings, ink or pencil drawings, sculpture in clay, soap, metal, and wax, mosaic, several short stories and poems, and three original music compositions.

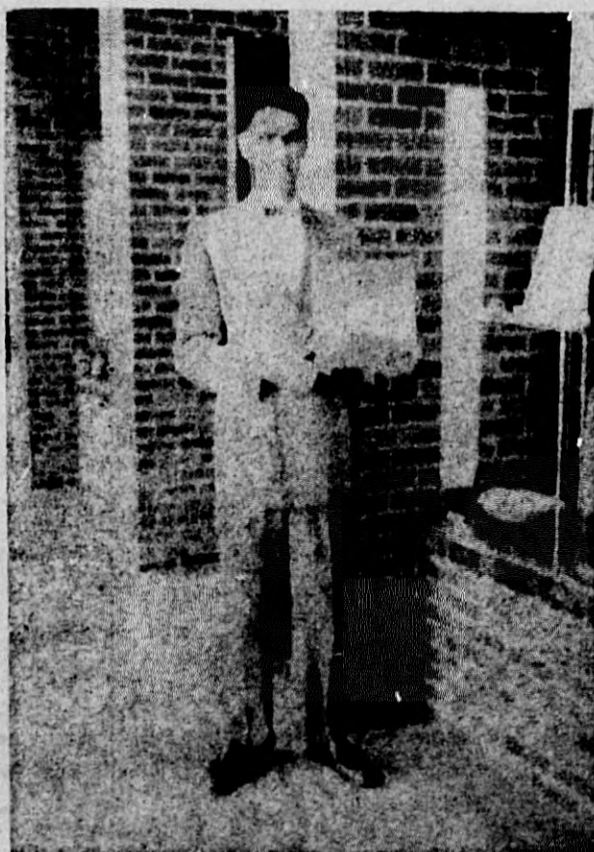

Of all these works, about 50 were paintings and drawings, and about 50 were architectural plans and models. The rest were of the various other choices.

Mr. Miner stated that he felt that the projects were very worthwhile.

Although the students complained about doing them, they admitted that they really had fun, and also learned a lot.

Outstanding projects in the different methods are, and will be, displayed in the Reid-Knox Building. (See picture at right).

The assignment was given before Thanksgiving, but most of the students waited until Christmas vacation to work on them. That is when many of the painters found that it takes an oil painting quite a while to dry!

Frat. Rushes Must Sign

Freshmen and upperclassmen men interested in rushing for fraternity membership, and meet the rushing requirements, will be required to sign the list in the personnel office during the first week of the new semester, February 2 to 7.

A man who is eligible to rush a fraternity must have been enrolled in Alma College for at least one semester, and he must have an overall one point (C) average. If a man has any questions as to his eligibility at the beginning of the next semester, he may find the necessary information in the office of the Dean of Men.

The fraternity smokers will be held on February 10, 11, and 12. The Tau Kappa Epsilon smoker will be the first held, on Tuesday evening, February 10, Delta Gamma Tau on Wednesday evening February 11, and Delta Sigma Phi on Thursday evening, February 12. These smokers will be held at the respective fraternity houses.

The fraternities will hand out bids to the men chosen as members on Friday, February 20, immediately following the chapel service, according to Mike Leonard, Inter-fraternity Council president.

Choral Union Rehearses For

Choral Union resumed rehearsals on January 13 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the college chapel, to prepare Brahms' "Requiem" for performance in March. Dr. Sullivan announced that any students interested in singing in Choral Union, are urged to attend rehearsal on Tuesday. No audition is required and there is no financial obligation, he said.

by
Barnette Shepherd
"the almanian's own foreign correspondent"

Dear Friends,

Right now the most exciting thing to write home about is the weather; it's beautiful. During the day, 85 to 90, and at night in the 60's, not a cloud in the sky. Gone is the humidity. It really doesn't seem like the same Allahabad.

From October 11 through 27 was a university holiday. I'd like to tell you about what I did during those days.

The first five days were spent traveling with a student, my friend Ramesh Chandra Sharma. (In India you are introduced with all three names.) We first visited an uncle of his at Bullandshahr, a small town about three hundred and forty miles from Allahabad. This was my first inside look into a real Hindu home, and I must add I felt quite out of place. No one spoke English except the uncle. With my little Hindi, I could catch a few words now and then but was never able to talk except through Ramesh. We stayed there only long enough to clean up and have breakfast.

From Bullandshahr we went by car, a new Ambassador, thirty h.p., India's No. 1 car, to Delhi, about forty miles. The ride was over a road that certainly didn't look like what I thought would be the main highway to the capital of India. In short it was more like a little back road somewhere in Mississippi. Because of all the traffic, tongas, bullock carts, people on foot, the driver had to blow the

Medea

(continued from page 1) and mentally provoking; it would be a shame if what promises to be an excellent production did not stir ardent discussion for some time to come.

The part of Medea, barbarian princess, and dark designer, is fiercely demanding. Marilyn Henry seems so in control of Medea's alternating hypocritical composure and emotional orgies that scarcely a break comes in the hypnotic building up to the point of madness. Miss Henry evokes a demonic force and exudes remarkable energy throughout.

Margaret Wood, as Medea's childhood nurse, effectively sets the opening mood of the play, and gives us sympathetic clues to Medea's character by her sensitive portrayal. The chorus of Corinthian women, played by Sue Edgar, Ann Harris, and Fran Erickson, provide a suitable contrast to Medea's passionate energy. (They are the common women of the world, pale in comparison to Media, but wealthy in everyday wisdom.

The men of the play appear less strong than the women, but in a way this is built into the play itself. George Keevil plays the part of the tutor; Thell Woods plays Creon, king of Corinth; Dave Ebert, Aegeus, king of Athens; and Bob Love, a slave. Bob Stredwick plays Jason, Medea's former mate, who has now abandoned her for a Corinthian princess. Jason is a selfish man and a compromiser, but he is not uncommon in any day; we find him recognizable if not admirable, and hardly the "root of the present evil," as the Corinthian women assert.

If the portrayal of Medea herself were not so strong it probably would be very difficult for young Charles House and Mark Cornelius, playing Jason and Medea's children, not to steal some scenes. In fact, it may be impossible, horn all the way. It seemed almost unfair that everyone had to get out of the way for an automobile. To give you an idea of the scarcity of cars, during that four hour ride we didn't pass more than five other cars. When we got into Delhi, I saw that all the cars of India are there. What traffic, with almost no stop lights, but policemen at every intersection.

In Delhi we stayed with another uncle and aunt. They are a newly married couple living in a huge government apartment project. Before lunch we went to the nearby bazaar to buy vegetables and whatever was needed for lunch, as they do everyday. This trip to the bazaar took me out of modern India right back to the old.

While the wife was preparing lunch, we walked across the street to see the construction job at which Mr. Bhulyan is an air conditioning engineer. Once again this placed me right back into India 1958. What a beautiful building, as modern as any in the U.S. I was happy to see that they were using a type of acoustical tile at some places in the building, but unhappy to see the terrible way they had put it up, but it didn't really matter, because I saw it wasn't ABITIBI board. We climbed up to the roof, and there all around us was Delhi, a huge sprawling city with a sky line like any South American metropolis. I had almost forgotten that this was a part of India too.

Our lunch and all the food was great, a pure vegetarian diet. The food is eaten with a type of unleavened bread, shaped like a flat pancake, called "chapatti." You break off a piece of the chapatti and use it to pick up the various vegetables with your fingers. The only thing we didn't eat with our fingers was the curds, served most every meal. Watching in the kitchen was really fun. I had to take my shoes off to go in as everything is prepared on the floor. Everything is cooked on a little charcoal pot stove, usually fried in a type of fat called "ghee." The kitchen was a sight for any American housewife to behold, about six by eight feet, with no sink, no cabinets, no refrigerator, but what wonderful tasting food!

B.S.

Questions asked Fritz most include: "Are there any houses, or is it all jungle?" Most of the others are about Brazil's location and the Latin girls.

As to the dating customs: chaperones accompany the young couple on the first few dates, usually a young brother or sister. Dating in cars is not allowed. Fritz attributes part of this rule to the fact that cars are so expensive there; a new Chevrolet costs about seventeen thousand dollars.

Plan Fine Arts Week

Plans are being made for a Fine Arts Week to be held from April 27 to May 3. Included in the festival will be noted speakers, a play, and an art exhibit.

Alma Downs Hillsdale 78-57

By Lyn Salathiel

Last Saturday night the Alma Scots roared past Hillsdale with an impressive display of shooting, rebounding and ballhandling. When the final buzzer sounded the score read Alma 78, Hillsdale 57.

The big gun and standout performer of the evening was Roseville freshman Duane Hussey who, despite his youth in the MIAA, proved beyond a shadow of a doubt that his abilities on the hardwood are not to be taken lightly. His rebounding and shooting from underneath kept the Scots continually in the lead.

Jim Northrup and Ferris Saxton gave the hosts a start with several field goals from the key with Dalton Cantrell and Hussey rebounding and tipping.

The offensive unit, resembling the superb contest last week against Central Michigan College, moved well from the start, gaining momentum as the score mounted.

Alma jumped to an early lead and maintained it throughout the half. The first quarter ended 21-20 and at the half the score stood 35-28 with the Dales coming up with a hot streak about midway in the period.

After intermission, the Scots showed they were well on their way to victory number eight. The excellent rebounding and shooting enabled the home team to surge ahead and pile up a lead which was never overcome by the Dales.

Jim Reynolds and Bob Sippel provided the visitors' spark and drive but could never be sustained long enough to offer a serious threat to the Scots' lead. Reynolds dropped in fifteen points while Sippel collected ten.

Ferris Saxton led the Scots in the second half with his jump shots from around the key and wound up with twenty points for the evening. Hussey, who was high for the night with twenty-three points and Cantrell who contributed thirteen to the winning cause, controlled both boards during the course of the second half.

The Scots now have an 8-6 overall record and are 4-2 in the league. This record puts them in second place in the MIAA.

Vice President: Bob Cotter, Recording Secretary: Stan Ruger, Pledge Master: Bill Wilson, Corresponding Secretary: Larry Thompson, Sergeant-at-Arms: Gerry Pape, Parliamentarian: and Dal Knapp, Librarian. George Cobb will continue in his duties as Treasurer, and Vern Hipwell will go on as Housemanager.

Dal Knapp, Librarian, stated: "We would like to take this opportunity to offer our congratulations to Bob Wollard and Jan Harrington, and Larry Braak and Nancy Hopson who became engaged recently, and also to Dave Hogberg and Judy Weigold on becoming pinned.

The Scots play two games this week but both are on visiting courts. One is against Olivet in an MIAA contest and the other tomorrow night against Ferris Institute in a non-league tilt at Big Rapids.

The Ferris game will be the last for the Scots until after final exams. Then they resume play against Soo Tech on January 31. The game will be played at Sault Ste. Marie.

Ping Pong Tournament Is Success

Award Certificates, Medals; Plaque To Be Hung

The ping pong tournament recently completed in Tyler Auditorium turned out to be a big success. Mrs. Ruth Phillips, Tyler Social Director, said. It was sponsored by the International Club with Gity Moayyed acting as chairman.

Some thirty-five ping pong enthusiasts entered the tournament in several divisions which included men's singles, women's singles, men's and women's doubles and mixed doubles.

Chuck Nelson, Alma, won the men's singles championship after hard fought battles with several talented players. The winner in the women's singles competition was Carol Hogen, Grand Haven freshman.

Another local boy making good was Jim Delavan who teamed with Dave Turner, Saginaw, to win the men's doubles championship. No one entered either the women's doubles or mixed doubles events.

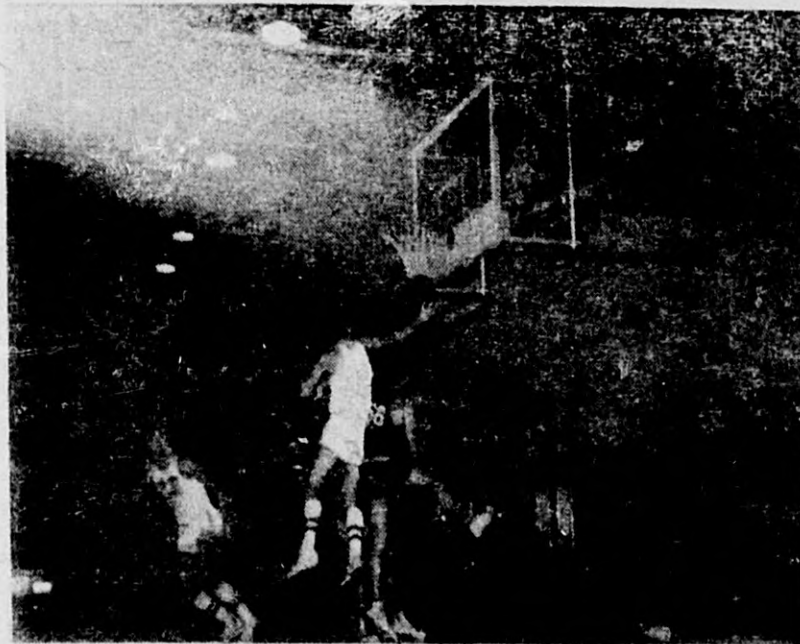

Each winner received a certificate presented by Dean of Women Esther Vreeland, club sponsor, and medals, due to arrive shortly, will also be awarded the champs.

A plaque has been ordered which will be hung in the Tyler Auditorium. The names of the winners in the different divisions this year and in the future are to be put on this plaque.

The tournament is to become an annual event on the Alma campus and will be sponsored each year by the International Club.

Forward Jim Northrup grabs a rebound off the boards in Alma's game with Hillsdale which the Scots won handily 78-57.

Dalton "Butch" Cantrell and Duane Hussey outjumping an unidentified Hillsdale player for a rebound in last Saturday night's MIAA contest.
