FACULTY VOTES

3 - 3 Plan Set For September, 1965

The 3-3 plan will be inaugurated in September, 1965, according to the vote of the faculty at its monthly meeting last Monday. Another resolution passed at that time provides that no student's graduation would be delayed as a result of the shift to the new academic calendar.

It is to be emphasized, says Dean William Boyd, that changes will not be retroactive and students presently in residence need have no anxieties about being adversely affected by the change.

As the present sophomore class will spend its senior year under the new plan, all members who are proceeding regularly toward graduation will not have to take more than the standard nine courses during his senior year.

Both recommendations were brought to the faculty by the Ad Hoc Committee which now will address other problems, says Boyd. One is the possible change in teaching technique.

Working out the details is now the task of each department and the Curriculum Committee. Between now and January, 1965, each department will re-examine its own offerings to see if any changes should be made.

At the same time, the Curriculum Committee, headed by Boyd, is responsible for examining graduation requirements for possible changes.

Criticisms and/or suggestions are welcomed from individuals or responsible student groups, Boyd says.

A series of class meetings is being planned for discussion of the new plan. Members of the Ad Hoc committee will conduct these voluntary evaluation sessions in the near future.

Members of the Curriculum Committee, which meets every Tuesday night, are Miss Molly Parrish, Dr. Howard Potter, Dr. Musa Hussayni, Dr. Samuel

BIDS AT NOON

Tomorrow at 12 noon approximately sixty men will receive fraternity bids in Tyler Auditorium, where the student body is invited to watch. From the auditorium the men who receive bids will branch down one of the sidewalks on Gelston quad to their respective choices where they will be welcomed by their future brothers.

This will climax the two-week period of rush consisting of informal open houses and smokers, and begin a six to eight week period of pledging.

L - C Series Topic: British Playwrights

Miss Jacobson to Discuss Shakespeare and Shaw

William Shakespeare and Bernard Shaw will be the subject of a lecture-concert series program on Thursday evening, February 20. Miss Emilie Jacobson, talented lecturer, journalist, and actress, will present "Two Great Portraits" at 8 p.m. in Dow Auditorium. She will concern herself with these two famous authors, their writings, and reactions to the world.

Miss Jacobson, a native of England, knew Shaw personally. She has played on the English stage, has written for the British press and has traveled extensively. She has also had a successful television series about "Women in Shakespeare and Shaw."

Mr. Albert Katz heard Miss Jacobson speak at Olivet. Intrigued by her performance, he invited her to participate in our lecture-concert series.

"She is an excellent interpreter," says Katz. "She has an extraordinary ability to communicate fully . . . to fall completely in and out of character at will."

It is her "juxtaposition of the man and his work" that is so effective. As she explains and then does a sequence the audience receives a "combination of fine entertainment and a knowledgeable, useful approach to both of these writers." "Too often," adds Katz, "information and entertainment are regarded as separate entities."

Tickets for the performance are free. They may be picked up at the information desk in Reid-Knox beginning next Monday.

Emilie - Jacobson

Beginning this semester, the minutes of the Student Council will be posted on the Student Council bulletin board each week.

New Library Completion Set for July 1

Alma College's new library is well on its way to completion, says Dr. Stephen Meyer, college business manager.

"Completion date is set at July 1, 1964, and we want to use the library by September 1, so it is meeting our needs," he said.

At the moment, masons are at work laying the exterior brickwork and putting on pre-cast slabs. They are also laying brickwork where it is necessary on the inside.

The general contractor has cement finishers at work on the concrete roof, which nearly completes the exterior work. Sheet metal men are installing duct work, since a considerable amount of the interior is air-conditioned. Heating units are being installed by mechanics.

Roofers were here Tuesday to waterproof the building, while the elevator contractor has been on the job putting in stairs on the inside of the building. The southeast corner is nearly completed, and the central stairs were scheduled to be started this week.

Landscaping architects are now working and should have their jobs done by March 1. This would mean that work on the soil and planting could begin during March.

Contracts have been awarded for all manner of furnishings: technical material, carpeting, chairs, tables, and seating units for the classrooms, to name a few.

In March, work will start on a mall to connect the library with the Dow Science building. This will be a solid concrete area, made up of colored concrete squares, and will feature lightposts along the length of it.

On the financial end, exclusive of pledges and money on hand, $50,000 is still to be raised. However, there is every hope that the building will be debt-free by July 1.

Wegner Speaks On 'Lyric Poem' In Next Convo

At convocation on February 25 Dr. Robert Wegner, assistant professor of English, speech, and drama, will address the convocation on the topic, "The problem of love in the lyric poem."

When asked more specifically about his topic, Wegner said that with the title as announced he felt free to talk about nearly anything he wanted to and would like to leave it that way.

Wegner has his bachelors degree from Michigan State University and his masters and doctorate from Western Reserve University. He has been on the Alma faculty since 1957; many students are familiar with him through his lectures in Western Civilization.

In addition to his professional duties Wegner finds time to write short stories, poems, and literary criticism. Within the past year he has published a book on e. e. cummings and in cooperation with Mr. Kent Kirby produced a small volume of poems and prints entitled "Words for Frames."

The convocation is open to all students. Attendance is required for freshmen and juniors.

Almanian Receives Information About College Honor Systems; Two Outlined in Some Detail

Some sizeable number of colleges and universities in this country are run under some kind of arrangement called an "honor system." The almanian has recently received information in regard to honor systems in effect at Wooster and at Antioch. These proved to be interesting both from the point of view of their similarities and their differences.

At Wooster the system is limited to academic matters and was adopted by the students and faculty in the spring of 1962. To date it has proven to be a practical and worthwhile system there. It is based on the premise that the student has a responsibility to himself and to the rest of his community to uphold the ethical standards of the community.

It is a very formalized system; the student is required to sign a pledge to abide by the honor code when he enters the college and to write a statement that he did not receive or give help on every exam that he takes.

The honor code at Wooster also spells out in some detail what acts are considered to be a violation of the code and specified one procedure to be used in dealing with infractions of this code. The student who cheats is obliged to turn himself in within 48 hours for disciplinary action. Any students who observe him cheating are honor bound to inform the cheater that he was observed and to turn him in.

The argument in favor of this system is that there are certain people who will cheat, and that other students will allow this to go on unless they are honor bound to report an offender.

Discipline in the case of violation of the code is in the hands of an academic board who will meet in consultation with the deans of the college.

Symphony Plays Here Wednesday

Next Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Tyler Auditorium the Saginaw Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Sam Jones will play the second and final concert in their Alma series. Season tickets will be honored; individual tickets will be sold at the door for $1.50.

In contrast to this limited, formalized system, Antioch has an all-encompassing, informal honor system which rests of a 40-year tradition at the school. Their "Philosophy of an Honor See 'System', p. 3

Student Art Offered For Sale

Art work by Alma students is presently being shown and sold at the International Gift House on State street. About 25 works are on display, representing the efforts of 15 contributors.

Most of the works for sale at present are prints or other graphic works. Students wishing to exhibit work should see either Mr. Kent Kirby or Carl Cratsenberg.

Beginning this Sunday Wright Hall men will be permitted to entertain women in their rooms from 1-5 p.m. on alternate weeks. Plans for these bi-weekly open houses were made by the Wright hall dorm council.

responsible action . . .

We are glad to note the beginning of a series of bi-weekly open houses at Wright Hall. We welcome this news not only because it provided another, and slightly different, activity for students, but more importantly because it indicates that students can have an effect on what goes on on this campus, if they take responsible action.

In striking contrast to the orderly planning and going through proper channels that took place at Wright Hall, we might note what the men of Mitchell did to try to achieve the opening of their dorm more frequently to women: they all signed a petition. In many ways this was the easy way out in contrast to the work that it took to implement a workable program of open houses. Signing petitions is not a substitute for constructive action; rather it should be a last resort when other methods of achieving change have failed. Many other organizations or students who wish to effect some change in college policy might do well to bear this in mind.

letters to the editor

Dear Editor,
I'd like to raise the question—what are rush rules for? In this day and age rush rules are outmoded. After all doesn't everyone get "rushed" beforehand by the glorious sororities of Alma?

Rush rules are fine, I think, if all sororities would promise or rather swear not to visit, talk to, walk to class with, or generally hobnob with the prospective rushees before rush. But this is utterly ridiculous as any discerning coed knows.

How else, the cry goes up, will we get to know the girls? Well, my dear sorority friends, that is what the rush program is for—get to know all of the girls, not just one-third of them!

Sorority rush is great fun if you are a desired rushee. But, ah, the other side of the foot—what about those who are not really desired—oops, I mean rushed before rush begins? They too go to the teas, the spreads, and maybe, if they're lucky (or the desired ones go another way or flunk out), come back for the deserts.

Therefore, I ask, what are rush rules for???

Cool Coed

Dear Editor,
The other day my roommate and I were expressing our opinions about the voting age—or, rather, she asked me if I think the voting age should be lowered to eighteen. I replied, "Yes, definitely," and a heated discussion then followed, during which she said, "Why don't you write a letter to the editor about it?" "The almanian editor?" I said. "Of course," she answered. The idea did not appeal to me at first, but since she suddenly changed her opinion about the voting age, agreeing with me that it should be lowered to eighteen, I decided to honor her request and express my opinion to the world by means of the almanian. So I am. I think that the voting age should be lowered to eighteen, and my argument is "the old motto," "old enough to fight; old enough to vote."

Seeing You Ask Me

Write Your Own Headline

by D. Merit

Stimulated by the opening of the new International Film Series (No. VD this past week and the many turned away at the door, the almanian is proud to announce the beginning of the Merit Film Series (No. D). An announcement will be in next week's CampComm to provide subscribers with data which should lead to the determination of the time and place.

The first feature film, sponsored by the AWS, is entitled The Birds and the Bees. It stars Dear Abby as the busy bee and a Full-breasted Bed-thrasher as the bird. A complete sex education is provided for the coed. The film features such pregnant information as pollen tube growth and fern cycles. It includes a daring shot of bacterial fission and a shot of a fern spore which was purged from many copies. Narration is by E. Coli.

The foreign film in the series is Ich Liebe. Der Knabe sieht das Madchen. Das Madchen sieht den Knabe. Der Knabe liebt das Madchen. Das Madchen liebt den Knabe. Wunderbar.

The Horatio Alger Story has a plot which centers around a student who improves his grades from a 1.34 to a 4.00 in one semester and then receives a large scholarship and is accepted into graduate school. The theme tries to bring out the age-old adage that cheating pays.

A Primate at Alma centers around a chimp who was enrolled at Alma College. Scheduled into classes with large sections, the monkey makes the dean's list when most of his profs "give him the benefit of the doubt because he was always there and brought me a banana every day."

The Alma College story has music by the A Cappella choir and is narrated by Dean Boyd. Old Main plays Old Main. Complete with the original cast this film portrays the day-to-day life on the Alma College Campus. Some find this film hard to understand when sitting near the screen, but those who have viewed it from a greater distance state that it is very humorous.

The Fate of an Advisee centers around the problems of asking a question. Shunted from his advisor to the Dean of Women to the Dean of Student Affairs (who promises him one) to the Academic Affairs Committee back to his advisor, the student gives up and uses the clean facilities of the local Standard station.

House Views Chapel Program

Mr. Charles House, college chaplain, commented recently that this past semester's program of voluntary chapel has worked out very much as the faculty expected it to. Attendance has ranged between 50 and 75 people on Thursday mornings and on those Tuesdays when there has been no conflict with convocations around 125 people have been in attendance.

House said that he would always hope that more would come, but that he wasn't disappointed in what has happened. "What is lacking in size is made up by the very real devotional attitude of the people who come."

House said that for the first time since he became chaplain, he really felt this year that he was worshipping with the congregation, not just performing for an audience. He did note that there was some problem created by the size and structure of the chapel in relation to the number of people that attend, but that this has not been a serious handicap.

House was somewhat ambivalent in his comments on the convocation program. He did comment that with weekly convocations on Tuesday and FAG groups on Thursday that this renders a significant portion of the campus unable to attend chapel at all.

On the other hand he pointed out that one of the purposes of the expanded convocation program was the discussion of crucial questions of the Christian faith in a context other than worship. He also pointed out that he did not see the convocation program as a peripheral to the main academic program of the college, but rather as one of the more important parts of that program.

Smith Writes . . .

The author of this letter, Jerry Smith, is a former Alma student now spending a year in Africa as a representative of the college. He is teaching at Mayflower school in Nigeria; and will return to Alma next fall.

January 23, 1964

Dear friends,
It was four o'clock last Saturday morning when the bus rattled into Shagamu and dumped out Phyllis and me. At that moment Shagamu, Nigeria joined Nashville and Alma, Michigan in a special corner of my life—home at last. This rather surprised me, for I never dreamed, when I first saw Shagamu, that I'd ever call it home, and in fact we had to wait another hour for a ride to Mayflower. The last part of the trip was quite tiring so I've made use of Mayflower's present stillness with some good long naps and reading.

Mick and Phyllis and I had arranged to go with a lorry all the way from Bamenda to Onitsha, Nigeria leaving at 9 in the morning and arriving in Onitsha at 5 the next morning. For 1,500 francs each we would have seats with backs and no freight packed around us.

At 9:30 the agent came to tell us that the police had impounded our lorry, but we could ride with another one. This one was two-thirds loaded with raw hides and we were to sit on planks with our knees half way to our chins. We climbed on and paid them 1,000 francs apiece—the same fare paid by the ten Africans on board. Then began an hour long palaver which became rather heated at times. They demanded that we pay 500 francs more or get down. We called their bluff (if they hadn't been bluffing we'd been stuck for two more days) and they finally started.

As we careened down the mountain road in a cloud of dust we had to laugh when we thought how much you'd pay for a ride like that in an amusement park. Our morning delay had been a bit too long, and we arrived at the Nigerian border ten minutes after it closed, so we spent that night under the stars.

We were in Enugu by 3 in the afternoon—350 miles in 30 hours. A cold shower and a good night's sleep at Mick's friend's house steeled us for the home stretch. By noon we were crossing the Niger; by supper time, we were in Owo; by 5 the next morning we were walking up the Mayflower drive. We'd been away for almost a month and we were very, very happy to be back.

Sincerely,

Jerry

Alpha Sigma Tau

The starting line is set, Maryryn' Sam is ready at the altar, and Daisy Mae and Moonbeam McSwine have their track shoes on. As you can see, everyone is ready to greet you and to take part in the big event which is coming tomorrow night from 9 to 12 p.m. We hope you gals have your guys and are ready for an exciting low-brow evening at "Amo Te in Dogpatch." And don't forget guys, you can bring track shoes, too.

Alpha Theta

The Alpha Thetas find themselves busy at the start of the new semester with plans for a song fest, spring rush, and the snow carnival dance. This week a major part of our activity has been our room improvement program on which we've all been working diligently. In the midst of this activity we are sorry to note the absence of Jan Meier who graduated in January. She is now teaching in Berkley, Michigan, and has our best wishes for a successful semester. It looks like a busy and exciting semester for Alpha Theta, as it does for the entire campus.

Delta Sigma Phi

This past week the fraternity has been busy with improvements at the house on Saturday's Field Day. An Open House was held on Sunday afternoon from 2-5 p.m. for all rushees. On Thursday night our annual Spring Smoker was held at the house.

Tomorrow afternoon the Alumni Control Board of our local Gamma Phi chapter will be meeting at the house to discuss several matters of importance. The meeting is scheduled for 3 p.m.

Kappa Iota

The KIs are proud to announce their newly elected officers for the spring semester. They are: president, B. J. Place; vice-president, Jodie Zukas; recording secretary, Barb Wiley; corresponding secretary, Carolyn Reid; treasurer, Anne Roberts; assistant treasurer, Bonnie Labadie; Panhellenic representative, Sally Stough.

We would like to take this opportunity to congratulate

Mary Sue Crosby and Bill Pendell of Delta Sigma Phi on their recent pinning.

Sigma Tau Gamma

The hectic two-week rush period comes to a close tonight when we present our smoker. This seems to be a fitting climax to all the activities of this period.

We would like to wish the ASTs the best of luck at their dance tomorrow night. We are anticipating the excitement which undoubtedly will unfold.

Our warmest congratulations are extended to brother Jim Plate on his recent lavaliering of Andrea Lucy.

Rush = Excitement

by Sharon Martens

The month of February is going to be filled with exciting happenings on Alma's campus. One of the important ones, in the eyes and minds of many girls, will be sorority rushing. Rushing is the way potential sorority members can become acquainted with Alma's sororities and their members. It also serves as a means for sororities to get to know their future sisters. The sororities plan three social events: a tea, an informal spread and a formal dessert. These events will take place between the weeks of February 16 and February 28.

Last Tuesday and Thursday evening orientation sessions were held in the women's dorms. At these sessions the sorority presidents and the Dean of Women, who is the Panhellenic adviser, answered questions about sororities and explained the rushing procedure.

Today interested women signed up in the Personnel Office indicating their desire to rush. Thus the introduction to the activities has begun and the women will now begin their formal rushing with the teas on Sunday afternoon.

Rushing regulations have been established by the Panhellenic Council to make it possible for the rushee to receive as unbiased a picture of the sororities as possible. Strict adherence to these rules must prevail so that the rushee may make an objective choice. Penalties will be enforced by Panhellenic.

Sorority sisters have a definite feeling about their sorority. They feel loyal and proud of it. One sorority woman replied that her sorority was like an "ego-builder". It gave her a chance to coordinate many of the social activities, and to fit in with them. She had to learn to get along. But one sorority woman did not see it this way. She felt there was a demand upon her time and she was not as "gung-ho" on sorority life as she had been. "The rushee must take all things into consideration," agree members. "She must look at rush with an open mind." She must objectively decide if this is right for her.

Members feel rushing is an essential part of sorority life. It gives both the rushee and member a chance to examine and think about each other and the group as a whole. One member declared "It was a good way to meet people and to learn names and faces." Rushing of course has its drawbacks in that all who rush will not make their desired sorority, because of the quota set by the sorority. This adds much disappointment. But women feel that rushing in itself is also of importance.

'Inner City' Programs To Be Discussed Here

Involvement, work, study, growth, fellowship, and exploration will be the topics of consideration at vespers and a special program in Van Dusen lounge this Sunday evening. Mr. Harry Wright, Director of Special Services for Presbyterian Neighborhood Services in Detroit, will be on campus Sunday evening and all day Monday to talk with and interview students interested in The Detroit Urban Work-Conference. The title of his sermon for this first Lenten Vespers will be "He Fought the System." Here Wright will introduce the basic problems of the inner city and the church's involvement in or neglect of them. At 7:30 in Van Dusen lounge he will show a series of slides dealing specifically with the Urban Work-Conference in Detroit. At this time students will have the opportunity to become acquainted with the program in detail and to discuss with Wright and former participants any questions they might have concerning the program. Students interested in applying will also have opportunity to set up appointments for interviews on Monday.

This unique work-study summer experience is open to all concerned and interested students who have completed their sophomore year in college. Through a willingness to explore, learn about, and become involved in the dynamics of urban and inner city life, sixteen students work in six different areas of the city of Detroit, seeing the city and its problems laid graphically before them. Field trips, discussion groups, seminars, and recreational trips are also part of this ten-week program.

Four Alma College students have worked in the program within the last four years: Mary Ann Miller, Gail Daines, Dale Tuller, and Gloria MacIntyre. Two of them had this to say about the program. "Breaking down the barriers was an important thing to me...I previously had an attitude of suspicion towards Negroes...Being in their homes, worshipping with them, and holding the children in my lap, has helped me to know them as individuals rather than a race." "I came to see new areas of involvement for the church...I was changed as a person through my associations with people I had formerly viewed only in terms of stereo-types...The confrontation with reality brought new hope for the future."

Contemporary play reading was one of the extra study experiences of last year's Work-Conference in the Inner City program.

Hayward Communicates

Colin Hayward, Reed City junior, answered the Campus Communications call and is now the WFYC correspondent.

Each morning at 9:30 he calls in the events on the Campus Communications schedule. This is recorded and played on the Community Calendar program between 11 a.m. and noon.

"System" points out that a community operates on the basis of certain agreements among its members; effective operation rests on the premise that members can be relied upon to act in accordance with these agreements, without police or proctoring systems."

Provisions of Antioch's honor system include the absence of head residents in the dorms, no guard at the library door, and a provision allowing students to take exams out of the classroom to any place that is convenient to them.

Enforcement of the system is on an informal basis. The emphasis is on helping the student to take a responsible position in the community; if possible, violations are handled on an individual basis. If one student is aware of the violation of the honor code by another he is first supposed to discuss the matter with the violator. If this does not result in any correction of the problem he may report the violation to officials of the community government.

MILDER...MUCH MILDER

At left is depicted a typical professor during the regular session at The University of Wisconsin. He is worried about his heating bills; his children have the croup; his '37 Nash won't start on cold mornings; he feels a twinge of lumbago. He is about to grade 243 mid-semester tests. At right is the same professor during Summer Sessions. Note his healthy tan, his casual attire. He is about to dismiss his class and go boating on Lake Mendota. Surveys show that Summer Sessions professors are milder... much milder. For more information on Summer Sessions, clip this coupon and mail today.
