IN MITCHELL LOUNGE

Poet to Speak Here On Recent Publication

Poet Konstantinos Lardas will speak Sunday in Mitchell Lounge on his recent book And In Him, Too; In Us. The address, sponsored by the Apprentices Guild, will begin at 7. Lardas has been given several awards for his poetry in recent years. In 1961 he received the $1,000 Major Hopwood award for his fiction and one of his stories appeared in the Atlantic Monthly. He was presented with the Bain-Swigget Poetry Award for the best poems of both 1962 and 1963. He also accepted the Fulbright Student Award of 1962-63 for his studies in Greece.

In addition to the work in the Atlantic Monthly, Lardas' writings have been published in Harper's Bazaar, Accent and Prairie Schooner. He has also done translations of the verse of Gathos, Carafy and Safaris.

Lardas is a native of Steubenville, Ohio. He graduated from the University of Pittsburgh and received his M.A. degree from Columbia University. At the present time he is teaching at the University of Michigan, is married and has three sons.

Anyone who wishes to hear Lardas speak on his new book is welcome to attend the Sunday evening program in Mitchell Lounge.

Choir's Yule Concert Set for Sunday 13th

The A Cappella Choir will present its thirty-third annual Christmas concert on Sunday, December 13, at 8 p.m. in Dunning Memorial Chapel.

Following the opening candlelight processional, the choir will present a wide variety of choral works, ranging from the 16th century "Angelus ad Pastores" by Hassler, to the contemporary composition "The Star Song" by Kraehenbuehl. They will go from the serious, to the rollicking Ray Charles arrangement of "Jingle Bells."

Featured as solists will be Linda Robinson, soprano, Dick Groben, tenor, and Stacie Lange, violinist. The program will also spotlight the Alma Singers, who will sing an assortment of familiar carols. This select group has recently applied for a government sponsored trip to Europe for the coming summer.

Dr. Ernest Sullivan, having just returned from Europe himself after a year's leave of absence, finds himself conducting the full choir in concert for only the second time this year. The full choir sang for the Founder's Day Convocation, but only about two-thirds of the choir have been in attendance at any one time for the Sunday morning services.

If precedent holds true, as it has for the past seven years, the Chapel will be filled to capacity long before 8 p.m.

Actors Sparkle in 'Firstborn' But It's A "Tedious" Play

by Mr. Paul Storey

Despite the capable direction of Mr. Albert Katz and several sparkling performances, the Alma Players on November 19-21 were struggling with a Firstborn which would much better have been stillborn. The play is tedious, pretentious, and often incomprehensible.

Apparently Fry is attempting to say something about the mystery surrounding the suffering of innocents, but even if the myth he has chosen would comfortably carry the burden of this theme, the diffusion of attitudes and fragmentation of plot practically destroys any thematic coherence.

PANEL CONSIDERS RELIGION AT ALMA

"Is Alma College giving us a Christian Education?" is the subject of an upcoming forensic activity. On Tuesday, a panel of four students including Jerry Kuyk, Bonnie Labadie, Jerry Smith, and Ellen Yurick, will discuss this topic at 7:30 p.m. in Dow Auditorium.

Kuyk is to be moderator-leader of the 25-minute discussion. Following will be a period for questions from members of the audience.

Many students have expressed their concern in the area of religious commitment at Alma College and whether or not it is fulfilling its commitment. This program intends to air this issue and provide an opportunity for discussion and questioning.

All interested students and faculty members are cordially invited to attend.

College To Hold Sports Banquet

Alma will hold a fall and winter sports banquet tomorrow evening at 7:30 in Van Dusen Commons. The banquet will be held in honor of the 1964 varsity football, cross-country and basketball teams.

The guest speaker for this event will be Mr. Herb Estes of Ann Arbor, Michigan. Estes, a graduate from Alma in 1934, was a member of the varsity football team as a tackle and a guard. He is presently on the Board of Trustees for the College and is on a five-man committee raising funds for the new Physical Education and Recreation Building.

Team honors and All-Conference awards will be presented to members of the football and cross-country teams at the banquet.

Several senior high school athletes throughout the state have been invited by the Athletic Department to attend the event.

In the last issue of the almanian, November 20, 1964, an article concerning The Pine River Apology appeared. The headline for this story — Apology Banned by Dean — was inaccurate and misleading. We would like to retract this headline and apologize for any injustice that it might have caused.

in Moses and Shendi—an ambivalence which in the former's case finally puts him in the Egyptian camp protesting Jehovah's ways.

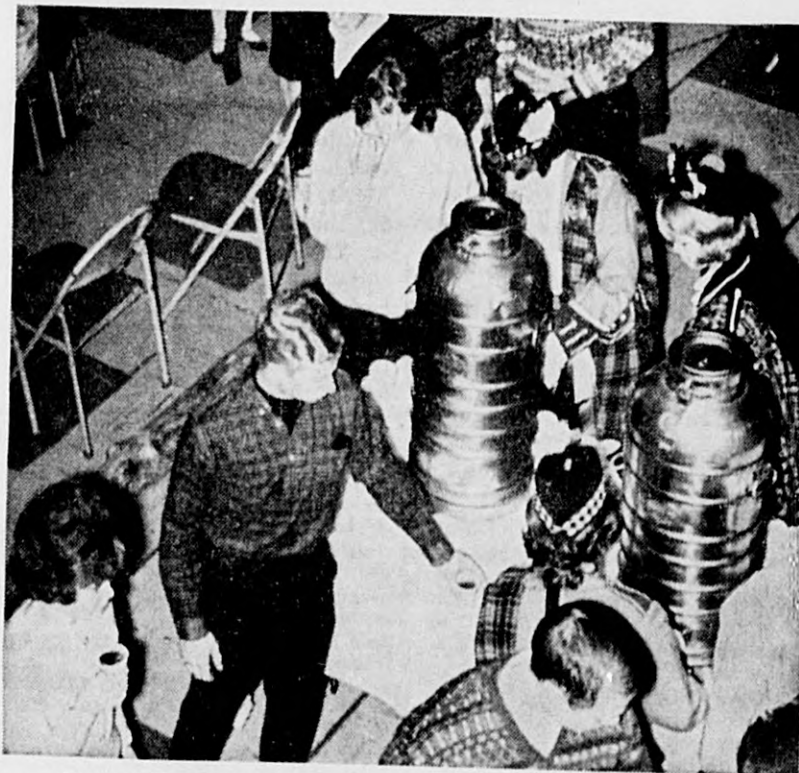

The Hebrews have cherished the myth as prime proof of their God's might and faithfulness in the deliverance of his chosen people and although primitive brutality is an element in the story, the focus on this one element does such violence to the total meaning as to cause severe discomfort and distortion.

In later plays Fry found good use for a mature and crackling rhetoric employed for sardonic and biting purposes, but in The Firstborn his language is merely muddy or ostentatious. His attempt at profound probing is just surface scratching and obscure images and involved syntax make this seem a schoolboy's poetic exercise.

All too many lines are virtually undeliverable. For most of one act the observer sits forward on his seat to catch all the hopefully clever nuances, but after struggling fruitlessly with such lines as "Ra's eyebrow, stiff with the concentration of creation," he's inclined to write the whole thing off as sheer bombast and concentrate on the production itself.

Fortunately, there's considerable reward in this. The set is artfully conceived and tastefully rendered and the actors appropriately dressed. Director Katz has employed here the difficult-to-sustain mirror technique and his cast have mastered it well and sustained it admirably. In itself, the choice of this technique was a wise one, for there is so little of dramatic tension arising from either plot or character that the piece must be a fright to try to play.

Katherine Ferrand's debut in a starring role revealed a voice, a composure, and that undefinable

Traveler, Author, Editor to Speak in Sunday Chapel

The guest speaker this Sunday at Dunning Memorial Chapel will be the President of the San Francisco Theological Seminary, Dr. Theodore A. Gill.

Gill, born in Minnesota, matriculated at both the University of Wisconsin and Princeton Theological Seminary. He received his Bachelor of Theology degree in 1943, and was ordained that same year. He did further study in New York and Switzerland and was granted his Doctorate in Theology at the University of Zurich in Switzerland.

Gill has earned, in addition, a D.D. from Occidental College in Los Angeles, California; a L.H.F. from the College of Emporia, Emporia, Kansas; a Litt. D. from the College of Idaho in Caldwell, Idaho; and a D.D. from Grinnell College, Grinnell, Iowa.

Among the many positions Gill has held are the ministry of the West End Presbyterian Church in New York City, chairman of the department of religion, professor of religion, dean of chapel at Lindenwood College in St. Charles, Missouri, and managing editor of a nondenominational religious journal, The Christian Century.

The Christian Century is published weekly and has correspondents in all fifty states and in twenty-two foreign countries. Gill also was the editor of The Pulpit from 1956 to 1960.

As a traveler Gill has few equals. He has visited the continents of Europe, Asia, South America, and Africa, these visits coincide with several 'round-the-world' trips. Needless to say Gill has traveled extensively in the United States, and has been guest speaker at more than a hundred different colleges and theological seminaries.

dribble . . .

After 2½ years of Acton basketball, Alma basketball started again. And lo and behold the shaky Scots were crushed by a shaky but more confident and more aggressive Central Michigan team.

We don't mean to be pessimistic, and we don't mean to judge the cagers on their one-game outing, but without a doubt the season is going to be much longer than last year's.

There were many grumbles from the student body this fall when Acton didn't return to school. (He was not allowed to return because he missed too many convocations.) Was this a legitimate reason to turn away a student, especially the "All-American" basketball hero who had carried the College basketball fortunes from the lower depths to almost, but not quite, the zenith?

We think so. But more important to Alma now is that it do something for the present team.

It might not be a championship team, but then last year's squad wasn't either. And the '64-'65 cagers are certainly not cellar-dwellers either.

Right now the team needs the confidence of knowing that the student body supports it wholeheartedly.

How about it?

responsibility . . .

Was John Donne wrong when he said "Every man is a piece of the continent, a part of the main."? It certainly appears that he was very wrong, especially when you hear someone say "Let someone else do it," or "I don't want to get involved." Making statements like this is bad enough, but when they actually follow through by letting "someone else do it," then is when we would like to dislocate their front teeth.

When Donne said ". . . I am involved in mankind . . ." was he speaking only for himself and a staggeringly small number of others? Two weeks ago a South Bend newspaper headline read, "While Others Ignore Pleas for Help, Two

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

The D. Merit Philosophy

In response to popular demand, we are going to come out in the open and present the D. Merit Philosophy! That is, if we can find it. We would have presented it earlier, only we couldn't find it then either. And anyway, the mobs didn't start stoning our embassy 'till just last week.

The philosophy seems to fall into a definite pattern of nebulous ideas. Unfortunately, every time we corner it, it flies back into its tree. But because we were prompted by an aroused citizenry to explain (or excuse) this weekly disappointment, we worked extra hard at capturing it. It was high time we had such an animal. After all, didn't the Playboy Philosophy make Playboy the success that it is today? We would simply copy the idea from the same source that they did (wherever that is!).

We thought we had a pretty good start, something along the lines of a collegian Bob Hope. Then our beloved editor (to use the words somewhat loosely) made the ridiculous off-hand comment, that the almanian should start running a humor column. Now this was a foul blow. Maybe he thought D. Merit has been a serious writer, like the type that write Biblical interpretations or something.

Anyway, this led us to search for some coherent pattern that must lay deep within the last dozen or so topics this column has considered thus far this year, some common thread, some connecting link. And we found one! The English language!

There are, of course, other similarities. Most of the columns have been funny, some even humorous. All have been written after the deadline. And so the search goes on.

In the coming year, we shall diligently continue our thread-seeking for an A No. 1, red-blooded, All-Western Civilization Philosophy. We may even create one if the need becomes really pressing. Meanwhile, to keep the customers satisfied, we are going to substitute full-page D. Merit Playmates that fold out. In color even!

Letters To The Editor

To the Student Council:

"In order to provide an effective means of communication between the student body and the college authorities; to interpret and maintain college tradition and customs; to exercise a general supervision over student activities and make more effective the most worthy of student opinion . . ."

The preceding is the preamble of the Constitution of the Alma College Student Council. We are writing this letter to point out that the Alma College Student Council is not functioning at all as it should.

Sometimes we are confused as to whether the Student Council is an organization to be directed by and to work for the administration of Alma College or if it is a student council working for the students and with the administration. We feel that the Student Council should represent the student body.

As students who elected the council members and whom the council supposedly represents, we should know what the Student Council is doing. But we do not. We do not know whether we can attend the Council meetings. We do not know how and to whom we can bring about complaints to be discussed by the Student Council. (The Student Council members apparently fail to read the letters to the almanian, or it would have its hands full of complaints.)

Last year, an honor code for Alma College was proposed (at the most inappropriate time, during the finals.) Nothing came out of it. Is the Student Council going to wait till the end of the year to bring up this worthy proposal again?

We also think that the students should be consulted on regulations concerning the students, such as regulations on dress and room decorations, through the Student Council. But, as a matter of fact, the memorandum sent to each student on campus dress came directly from the Dean of Student Affairs, and there is not a slightest evidence that the Student Council was consulted on this matter. If it was consulted, at least the Student Council should have made it known to the student body.

We feel that the Student Council is an apathetic figurehead of nothingness, a puppet for the administration, not a representative organization of the student body. It does not represent the students' voice.

We want the administration to take into consideration the views of the students before making unjust, often childish regulations. And we want the Student Council to reflect the opinions of the student body.

We hope the Student Council will take this letter into serious consideration. If it does not, we suggest that the body take on an "inactive status" as a campus organization.

Dear Editor:

I would like to thank everyone who extended his sympathy to me during my recent bereavement.

Student Council Acts On Library Dress

Meeting last Tuesday for the first time since November 3, the Student Council passed on several pending items of business. Among these was a resolution adopted recommending that students who have circulated petitions concerning campus affairs submit them to Student Council for evaluation, recommendations, and forwarding to the proper officials.

Lionel Garrison reported on the progress of the petition requesting that the library be kept open on Sunday evenings. The main problem has been finding adult supervision for this period, but it was thought that an assistant cataloguer now being hired might be available for this duty.

The possibility of opening rooms in the library basement or in Dow Science Building has also been investigated. The matter is to be brought up at the next faculty meeting, and a formal report will be forthcoming shortly from Dr. William B. Boyd, dean of the faculty.

The subject of campus dress regulations was brought up for discussion. Gunnar Gudjonsson pointed out that these regulations are set forth in the Student Handbook, which is drawn up by Student Council, and that the dean of student affairs only attempts to maintain and enforce this policy. Further committee study is expected to produce a clarification or additional recommendations on dress regulations.

Action was taken on a motion, tabled from the previous meeting, that Alma College withdraw from the National Student Association. The voting was unanimous in favor of the motion. Among the criticisms voiced concerning NSA were that it was overly concerned with national and international affairs, that it was "ultra-liberal," and that the policy-making functions were concentrated in the hands of a small number of national officers.

Lloyd MacAskill, formerly NSA representative, was appointed to investigate the possibility of affiliation with a state association of student governments or a proposed national association of small, liberal arts college student governments.

Other action taken included an amendment to the Student Council constitution permitting the Constitution Committee to pass upon the contents as well as the structure of proposed constitutions for student organizations.

Note was made at the meeting of a Leadership Conference to be held on December 12. The conference is still in the process of being organized.

Retakes for senior pictures are scheduled for Thursday, December 10th, 10:50 to 12:00, 1:00 to 3:00. The picture of the off-campus students will be taken at 10:30 a.m. the same day in Tyler Center.

Jensen, Hampton Meet To Debate Federal Aid For the Unemployed

Last Monday evening two members of the Old Main Society, Alma's debating club, debated the national inter-collegiate question "Should the Federal Government establish a program of public works for the unemployed." The affirmative stand was taken by Brian Hampton. Paul Jensen supported the negative. Jim Beck was moderator.

In declaring his stand, Hampton gave three reasons for the present unemployment problems: (1) increasing population, (2) automation, and (3) prospects of peace. The latter refers to the present thawing of the cold war and gradual reduction of the now tremendous roles that defense and jobs related to defense play in the national economy.

His solution was (1) a massive retraining program that would make use of subsidies to industry in order to retrain workers on the job, and (2) a plan of national public works.

Jensen, in his refutation, accused the affirmative stand of being a false analysis of the problem. He stated that the status quo in dealing with unemployment is adequate as shown by present legislation and the present economic situation.

Unemployment is desirable to many, he continued, and many jobs are now unfulfilled. The main reason for unemployment is lack of education. Therefore, an alternative plan is to tighten the unemployment compensation laws and provide means of giving available jobs to the unemployed.

Public works, he maintained, does not retrain and so has no lasting value. Jensen won by an audience poll.

The Old Main Society meets every Monday at 4 p.m. in Old Main 301. All students interested in debate are welcome to attend.

Auer Finds it Hard to Voice His Thoughts and Impressions

Dear Almanians:

I guess there's been about four letters I started and never finished that were to have been sent to the almanian. The reason that they were never finished is not that there wasn't time, but that I just couldn't express the thoughts and impressions that were in my mind.

Here I find myself being confronted with, and in some cases taking in, much new information, attitudes and ways of life—and from all of these some are very alien while others are very Western. It's a great challenge; I love every minute of it! America gets put in a very different perspective. Whatever the "final" synthesis will be, I can't help but think what an enriching experience travel has and will continue to be.

The week before last was my week on "staff duty" helping in the supervision of many of the student activities. It left me quite ready for another adventure out from Mayflower (that sounds like we're isolated here, which is not so, although Mayflower is quite a self-supporting institution). So last week I moved my Saturday classes up into some open periods Thursday and Friday. Everything was finally ready by 2 p.m. Friday and my roommate and I left for a trip north on his Honda 300.

By Sunday afternoon we were back at Mayflower after covering some 650 miles. If you're near a map, we went through Ibadan, Oro, Ogbomoso, Ilorin, Jebba, which is on the Niger River, back through Ilorin, Oshogbo, Ilesha Akure, Ilorin, Ijebu-Ode, and home. Just 200 miles north of here the short rainy season is over and everything's drying up. In another month it will be very hot and dusty, as the Sahara winds, or Harmattan, blow over most of Nigeria. The vast Geographical diversity of Nigeria more than matches the diversity of its people.

Whoever they are or wherever they are, the people seem to respond to you as you respond to them. If you are willing to get off the tourist track, you can get a more real idea of the people. At one point this was especially evident as I sat on the ground to "bargain" with a woman for a handful of peanuts. She "dashed" me almost one-third as much as I'd bought!

Bye for now.

Sincerely,
Tom

Snyders Forms New Stage Band

A new stage band has been formed on the Alma campus. The group was organized by Jim Snyders, a drummer in the group and manager of the band. This new stage band has 16 members taken from the concert band but is separate from the group. The band is equipped to play anything from "standard Glenn Miller" to the "latest rock and roll", says Dr. Edward Kottick, head of the music department.

The band's first appearance was at a music educators' convention. Their second appearance was at the Pop's Concert. So far they are also scheduled to perform on the band's spring tour from March 29 to April 1, and for the Parent's Day Concert on May 2.

Kottick expressed his feeling that "this group can be important in campus life because it brings the students the kind of music they are most familiar with in live performance." For says it is beneficial because it acquaints them "with the jazz idiom which they hear and don't get much of a chance to play."

Lyons and Stacie Lange.

able ability to excite which promise good things for the Alma stage in the months ahead. Actor Katz, in a role affording little opportunity either to be or to play, created with a superb sensitivity and technique, a character with considerable stature and appeal.

And in Charles Bross the Alma Theatre has found and nurtured another serviceable actor, who, as Seti, was always interesting if not always consistent or believable—the faults largely the playwright's rather than the actor's, however. Carol Bennett, Marvil Shaw, David Wegmer, Carolyn Waltz, and Keith Crandall were all substantially more than adequate in supporting roles.

Although one may have expected a great deal more of either substance or poetic worth from Fry, he could not have anticipated more than the nearly flawless production by the local group.
