ROGERS AND NICHOLS GIVE MUSIC RECITAL

A joint senior music recital is to be given by Sue Rogers, soprano, and Barb Nichols, flute, April 28 at 2 p.m. in Dunning Memorial Chapel.

Although neither Miss Rogers nor Miss Nichols are majoring in music (Miss Nichols - elementary education; Miss Rogers - English), they have studied in their respective fields for four years. Since they wanted something concrete to show for their work, they are giving this recital, which is a requirement only of music majors.

Miss Rogers will perform Sonntags am Rhein by Schumann, Meine Lieder and Der Jager by Brahms, Il est doux, Il est bon which is Salome's aria from the opera, Herodiade by Massenet. From the more contemporary songs, she has chosen Alleluia by Ned Rorem, How

I Love Thee? whose words by Elizabeth Barret Browning were set to music by Norman Della Jaja, Declaration of Independence which is a light portrayal of a four year old boy.

The Mad Maid's Song is a poem by Robert Herrick set to music by David Diamond. This number combines the talents of Miss Rogers and Miss Nichols.

Other numbers by Miss Nichols are Sonata for Flute in three movements by Johann Sebastian Bach Night Sololoquy by Kent Kennan and Sonata for Flute and Piano in three movements by Francis Poulanc.

Accompanying Miss Rogers is Miss Van DeMark of Alma; Miss Nichols, Miss Flegel of Ithaca. The other accompanist is Sylvia Flegel, freshman.

SONG FEST ENSEMBLE WINNERS:

Alma's Songfest annual found five ensembles and four quartets competing for the first place plaque awarded by president Swanson at the end of the evening of song. The winners stacked up as follows: The first place award for ensembles was given to the X.I.'s 'A Hundred Million Miracles', first runner up to the TKE's 'Soldiers Through History', and second runner up to Alpha Theta's 'Chansons du Vent.'

For the first place award for quartets, 'The Loyal Opposition' won with Marjie Hill, Sue Ann Martz, Melody Sischo, and Joan Westgate. First runner up was awarded to 'The Forget-Its', with John Broadwell, Dana Graham, Grant Burnham, and Larry Rublee.

The National College Primary will be held during lunch on Wednesday. This project is called 'Choice '68' and Alma is one of over 1500 colleges participating in this vote. This primary enables the college student to voice his opinion of the candidates for the 1968 election.

Boyd named CMU president

Mt. Pleasant, Mich. -- Dr. William B. Boyd, vice-chancellor-student affairs at the University of California, Berkeley, and former Dean of the Faculty at Alma, was named Wednesday president of Central Michigan University.

The appointment of Dr. Boyd as Central's seventh president was announced at a special meeting of the University's Board of Trustees.

Dr. Boyd, 45, a native of Mt. Pleasant, S.C., will assume his duties as president of July 1, 1968. He will succeed Dr. Judson W. Foust who is retiring June 30 after nine years as president and 39 years as a teacher and administrator here.

Vice chancellor at the Berkeley campus since July of 1966, Dr. Boyd was selected by Central's governing board after a presidential selection process which began with Dr. Foust's announcement of his retirement plans last June.

In his present position at Berkeley, Dr. Boyd is responsible for policy formation in the student affairs area, including the integration of academic and student affairs. He is also administratively responsible for the operation of such major units as the Registrar's Office, Admissions, Health Services, Counseling Service, Dean of Students and Placement Center.

Prior to 1965, Dr. Boyd spent 12 years at two Michigan institutions of higher education. He served as dean of the faculty and professor of history at Alma College from 1958-65, having gone there from the faculty of Michigan State University where he had taught since 1953.

As a student at Presbyterian College, he was editor of the student newspaper. He held a University Fellowship as a graduate student at Emory University.

Dr. Boyd served as an executive officer with the U.S. Navy from 1951-53 and was assigned to the historical section of the Bureau of Ordnance.

President Boyd

Dr. Boyd and his wife, Louise, are the parents of two children: Marcie, 16, and Susan, 11.

Tom Thompson Reports from Washington

During the first few days of our Spring break, eight Alma students along with Dr. Agria of the political Science Department participated in the Washington D.C. Workshop. These students were: Bob Boyd, Barb Ruthven, Howard Anderson, Mary Skinner, Fred Borchard, Marianne Miller, and myself.

The purpose of the workshop was educational. We eight had the rare opportunity to observe the Nation's Capital from the perspective of personalities involved in the Executive and Legislative branches of the Federal Government, and pressure groups whose particular interests are brought to bear upon these two branches.

In the State Department which was representative of the Executive branch, we met two contrasting personages. The first was Dave Dawson, a career officer in the Foreign Service. His chief interests lay in the area of International Organization. Mr. Dawson appeared to be an ambitious, taut young man in his thirties. For the most part, Mr. Dawson adeptly handled most of the questions fired at him from my colleagues. But when our questions focused on the Vietnam War, Mr. Dawson assumed an inflexible, dogmatic position repetitious of familiar arguments supporting the war.

When Mr. Dawson allowed himself to be maneuvered into an assertion of what constitutes our National Interest in foreign policy, his temper got the best of him: "I do not like people putting words into my mouth." What Mr. Dawson failed to realize, however, was that the official State Department position must necessarily be put into the mouths of their employees.

Mr. McCloskey, Under Secretary of Public Affairs dealt with all questions, including the Vietnam War. He was a benign, restrained man who had been a journalist before entering the State Department. Our experiences at the State Department came to a relaxed end after McCloskey, having been first prodded on the question, assured us that the State Department had no foreseeable intentions of sending a legation to "Quebec Libre"

One additional anecdote should be noted concerning American foreign policy. During our brief visit to American Enterprises Institute (A.E.I.), we met a retired Foreign Service officer, Professor Henderson who is now the Director of Foreign Service and Diplomacy at American University. We asked his opinions on who should participate in the decision making process with respect to foreign policy. He said that democracy has no place in making foreign policy. Unfortunately, the Senator from Arkansas was not there to reply.

Representing the Legislative branch was Sen. Griffin who was a disappointment. Griffin reiterated the Republican party's primary plank of the last eight years fiscal responsibility.

Although we did not contact Sen. Hart personally, his assistant, Terry Segal, presented us a glimpse of the more sublime side of the Senator's character. Invariably, you will find in a Congressional representative's office his state and American flag standing at both sides of one desk. On the walls would be framed documents and pictures of important personages. But Sen. Hart apparently did not go for this kind of traditional hodge podge. In their place were several abstract paintings. Old Glory will forever remain inviolate from the flag burner in the Senator's office; the patriotic Senator had sheltered her in his office closet.

When we were introduced to Mr. Oswald who was to explain to us the A.F.L.-C.I.O.'s function as an interest group, he was slouched way down into his leather chair and looked up at us like a well contented Cheshire cat. But when Mr. Oswald was prodded by the question whether the union had violated the public interest in the New York garbage strike, his whole frame sprang taut like a Bengal Tiger eyeing his prey. After citing figures, he finally concluded that the people of New York City had suffered no inconvenience at all. But Mary Skinner retorted that if one single baby had been bitten by a rat, wouldn't he be ashamed. I believe Mr. Oswald was well-rebuked to say the least.
