The National Science Foundation, an agency of the Federal Government, established in 1950, sponsors scientific research and encourages and supports science education projects in the United States. Proposals for scientific experiments may be submitted to the NSF from any source. A vast majority of support proposals stem from colleges and universities, and their faculties. Proposals are considered and granted on the basis of the scientific impact of the proposal and its educational by-products in the field of the sciences.

According to Dr. Ronald O. Kapp, Alma College Provost and professor of biology, the NSF grant will support two summer ecological studies. One study will center on the effects of pollution on organisms, and the other will concern itself with the plant ecology of the College's MacCurdy Research Station near Vestaburg. Serving as a supervisor with Dr. Kapp will be Dr. Arlan Edgar, professor of biology.

This summer's studies will be the terminal year of a three year grant. In the past, Alma College has received NSF grants for such projects as pollen analysis, bud physiology, and invertebrate beha ogy, and invertebrate behavior.

There will be four student positions appointed in connection with this summer's ecological studies. According to Dr. Kapp, the competition is open to biology majors of private colleges and univer-

"Model" Linen "Service"

Dear Editor,

In my relatively short stay at Alma -- I am a freshman --I have heard criticisms of some of Alma's institutions. Saga food, Union Board entertainment, sophomore women hours etc. have been among the chosen, sometimes criticised justly and other times without basis. I have my own opinions on these subjects which I feel have already been voiced by fellow students. One so-called service which I feel strongly about is Model Linen Service.

Model Linen, I feel, does not serve the Alma students to its capacity. I think the main problem lies in the distribution of the linen. In my dorm Mitchell Hall, linen can be picked up at the switchboard from seven to seventhirty on Wednesday evenings. Thus, a student has one halfhour in which he may pick up linen. This time period is kept very strict, in fact too strict. One Wednesday night

I became involved with an Econ chapter. I suddenly realized it was almost seventhirty and that I must pick up my linen, costing between one and two dollars per week. By the time I walked to the swtichboard it was about 7:31. Wouldn't you know it, the door was locked -- right on time' I asked the switchboard operator to come to my aid but it was "beyond his power" to give me linen. Other people have also missed linen in one way or another. This has led me to form the following equation: One student who missed linen equals at least Linen Service. What a boon to the student.

Also Model Linen seems to "forget" to supply the student with linen on some occasions. Almost always, these occasions are ends of terms or before mid-term breaks. Today, Wednesday, February 11, Model Linen did not issue linen, just as I predicted they would not to my roommate. This deprives the student who

Student Behavior At Game "Irritating"

Throughout those irritating one and a half hours some of our illustrious upperclassmen chided, mocked and scorned the referees, the commentator, the players and various onlookers.

ALMA SELECTED AS BASKETBALL CAMP SITE

ALMA- Two sessions of the Milwaukee Buck's 1970 All-American Basketball Camp eill be held on the Alma College Campus this summer.

Alma's Physical Education Center, one of the finest small college facilities in the midwest, is the only Michigan site for the training camp which features coaching and playing personnel of the Bucks in addition to well-known college and high school coaches.

The two six- day Alma camps are scheduled for Aug. 6-15 and 16-22.

Similar sessions are scheduled at sites in Wisconsin, Iowa, South Dakota, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Minnesota, and Nebraska throughout the summer.

Director of the Alma camps will be John Weinert, head basketball coach at Ripon (Wis.) College. John Orr, head coach at the University of Michigan, will join the camp staff for two-day during each of the sessions.

Larry Costello, Bucks head coach with Milwaukee players and other members of his staff, including trainer Arnie Garber, will be on hand during the sessions to instruct and demonstrate for camp members.

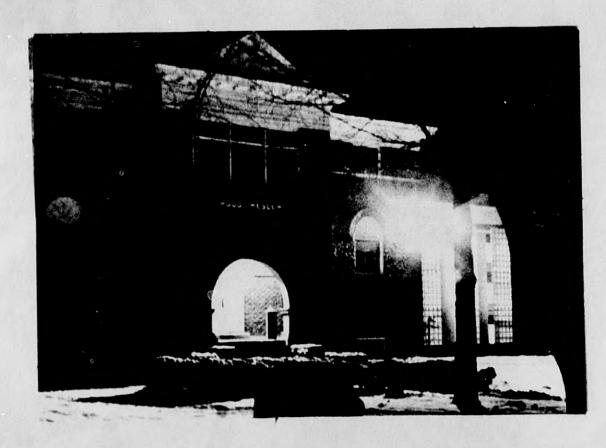

Members of the camp staff for the Alma sessions will include Don Ashdown, East Lansing High School head coach; Wayne Hintz, head basketball coach at Traverse City High School and former Alma College varsity coach; Dalton Cantrell, Alma College assistant coach; and Paul Sharpe, varsity basketball coach at Baldwin High School.

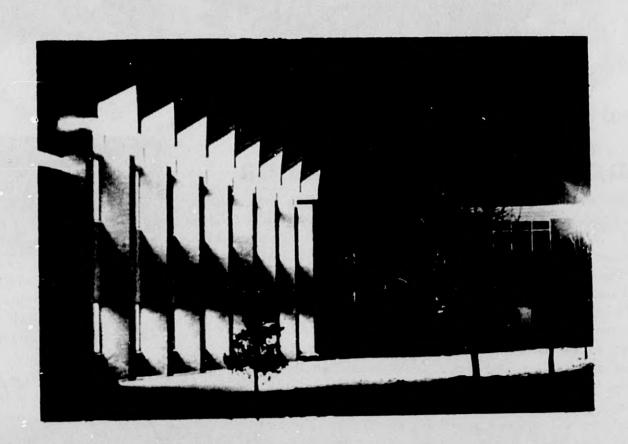

The camps, which emphasize individual attention, will involve four hours of small-group work each day, supplemented by lectures by staff members and guest coaches. Two rounds of games will be played iach day to provide immediate practice on skills and techniques that are covered.

One hour each day will be devoted to other activities such a softball, track, soccer, touch football and tennis. A relaxed swimming program will be another camp feature.

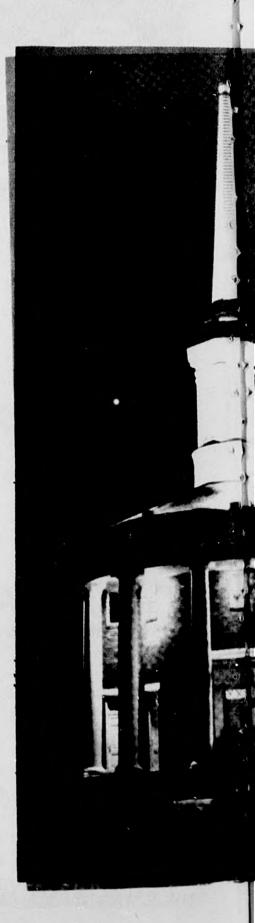

Further information on the All- American Basketball Camp sessions at Alma College may be obtained by contacting Dr. Charles Gray, Athletic Director, Alma College in Alma Michigan.

Foster Delegate to General Assembly

When the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of the United States meets in Chicago this year, youth delegates from all over the country will be included as representatives for the first time. Among those youth attending will be Mark Foster, Alma senior from Farmington, Michigan.

As a Youth Advisory Delegate, Mark will be seated in the General Assembly with full rights of speech, but without vote, and will have the opportunity of serving on the standing committees during the conference, sheduled to meet 10 days in May. The purpose of the General Assembly is to plan and establish the general policies for the Presbyterian Church, such as church missions, religious education and the church's attitude toward social problems. It was for this latter concern that Mark first applied, for he is "interested in the church's role in society."

Mark first applied to be a delegate through his own minister, Rev. George Ramsey of the First Presbyterian Church of Farmington. After going through the church channels, his application was sent to the Detroit Presbytery where he was personally interviewed and selected from among candidates of the 103 churches represented in this presbytery. Rev. Ramsey said Mark's selection was largely a result of his active involvement in college, and he affirmed without hesitation that Mark was "head and shoulders above everyone else" who applied. He will be officially delegated by the Detroit Presbytery February 24.

After the conference Mark will spend time relating his experiences and ideas of the meeting to some of the churches he represented. If the reaction of the Assembly is favorable to the Advisory Delefates, Rev. Ramsey hopes that full voting rights will soon be given to young representatives, thus giving youth a voice in their church's future.
