Head football coach Lyold Eaton and his assistants were welcomed at the outset of the 1954 football campaign by a host of returning lettermen and a fine crop of inexperienced freshmen. The state's leading collegiate scorer of the 1953 season, halfback Marv Raab, and Captain Fred Woods were among those returning to lead the Scots in the new season. Quarterback Denny Stolz put a fine ending to the dedication ceremonies of the new stadium as he passed the Alma

Ferris fumble gave Alma another touchdown and a close victory.
The Scots now turned south to Bluffton College in Ohio for their third straight victory in blistering weather, 27.6 . Midget halfback Bob Hill proved to be just as hot as the weather as he raced for three touchdowns. Raab caught a Stol pass for the other touchdown. Stolz converted three times. Chuck Spencer scored on the only real Bluffon threat in the third The Alma Scots (3.0) traveled to Hope College (0-3) for the first M.I.A.A. game of the season and met tragic defea 20-7. Alma fumbled six times in the first half and left the field behind 7.0. A Scot mistake gave Hope the ball again early in the third quarter and the Dutchmen proceeded to score again to lead 14.0 after the conversion. Another pass jumped the score to $20-0$ in the fourth quarter. Guard Jack Kring intercepted a Hope pass and Colbert walked into the end zone on the

3 Grand Rapids J. C.

The Scots gained their fourth win by downing an undermanned Gran Rapids Junior College squad, 27-7. Freshman Bob Godfrey contributed two touchdowns on a four-yard dash, and a pass from Stolz. Paul Domitrovich fell on a blocked punt and Brock slashed off tackle for the other

A literary society . . .

Parnassians

Parnassians is the literary society of Alma College. Its primary purposes are to nurture the appreciation of literature, to encourage the art of creative writing in th of its forms, and to provide a convenient medium by which the original compositions of the members of the student body may be read, discussed and criticized.

The Parnassian society was instituted in the fall of 1952 by Dr. Henry Klomp. Others who were instrumental in its organization were Dr. Robert Clack and Professor Wilson Daugherty, all of whom, with Dr. Klomp, served as advisors to the group. Soon after its organization, the Parnassians produced the first Pine River Anthol ogy, a collection of writings composed by Alma College students and faculty members. Since that time, the Anthology has been issued each semeste

In May 1954, the Poetry Society of Michigan assembled on the Alma campus for one of its regular meetings as guests of the Parnassians.

By the end of the spring term of 1954, the Parnassians had completed the forma of their constitution.
This year the Parnassians have accepted several new members to the society including two honorary members, Dr. Robert Woods and Mr. Parm Mayèr, both of whom have appeared as speakers before the group

Its members are made up of the House President, Dave Zittel, upper-class residents, Ken Bennett, Joe Coe, Dave McDowell, Bob Watterworth, Dick Watterworth, and one freshman representive from each floor, Glen Howarth, Wally Vance, Rex Terwilliger and Bob Freedman. House-mother is Mrs. Grace "Mom" Kain, very wonderful person. She takes an interest in every resident of the dorm; she truly tries to make this a home away from home.
The Freshmen in the dorm took an active part in the Homecoming activities. This year, Pioneer Hall entered the lawn decoration contest and won second prize. Thanks to Lee Hollingsworth, Dick Keene, and Jon Shoemaker for doing such a fine job. With the money that was won, the fellows are starting a television set fund.

During the busy holiday season, the dorm was decorated by the residents with a tree and some branches of pine. The traditional Christmas party was a big success thanks to "Ma" Kain and the fel lows who provided the entertainment. This spring the dormitory will hold its annual open house. This is Pioneer Hall; a home away from home.

The year's program consisted of outside speakers, presentation of student reports, pro ject meetings and field trips. One of the interesting field trips was a visit to the Michigan Department of Health in Lansing.

Because biology is such a broad field, the membership consists of those who are interested in many different aspects of biology such as medicine, dentistry, teaching, medical technology, agriculture, and biochemistry. The program, therefore, is very diversified and many interesting subjects are discussed.
