Innovation. Tradition.

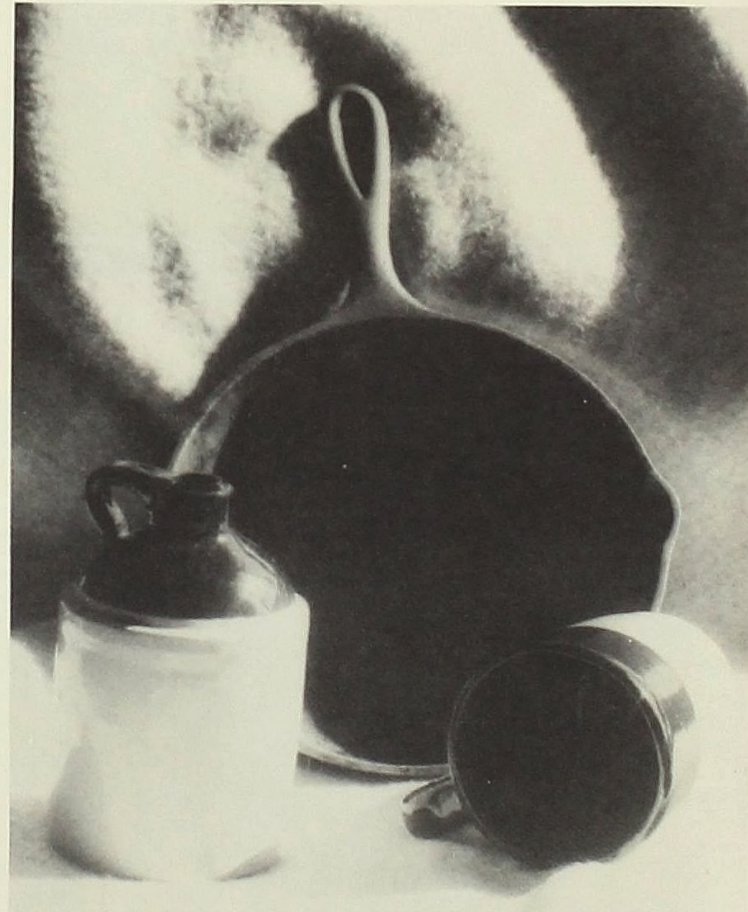

Tradition. Innovation.

The two words generally seem to represent contrasting ideas.

But are they actually so different?

Innovation is born of tradition:

One must be aware of what has preceded before he can deviate from those precedents.

Does our society glorify innovation, eschewing all that is conventional and traditional?

In every discipline and academic pursuit, a sound background of the fundamentals, the previous knowledge gained, must be had before new information can be added.

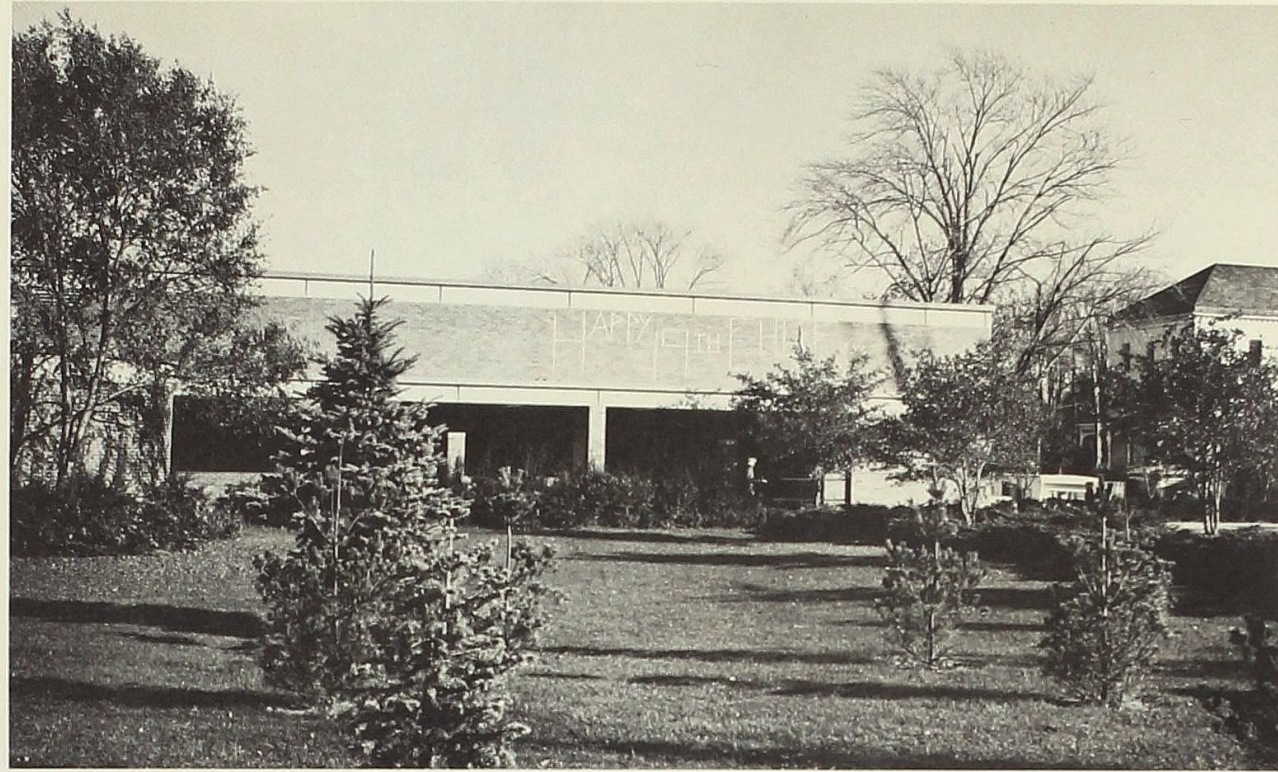

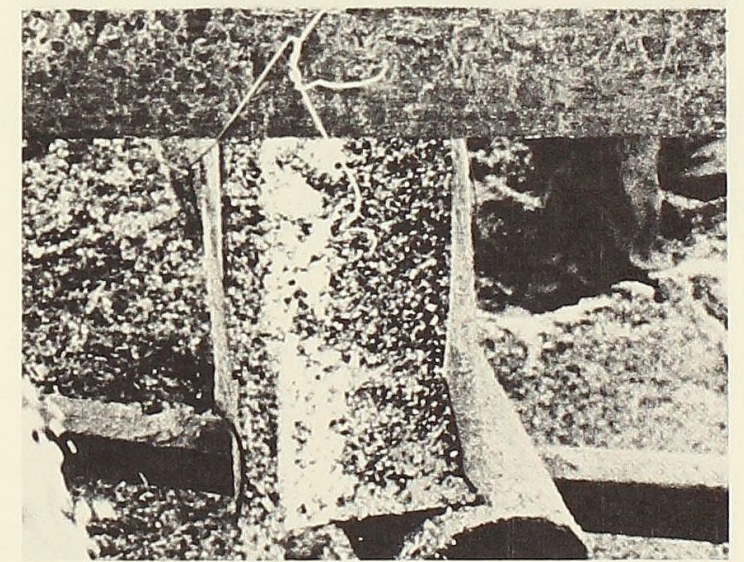

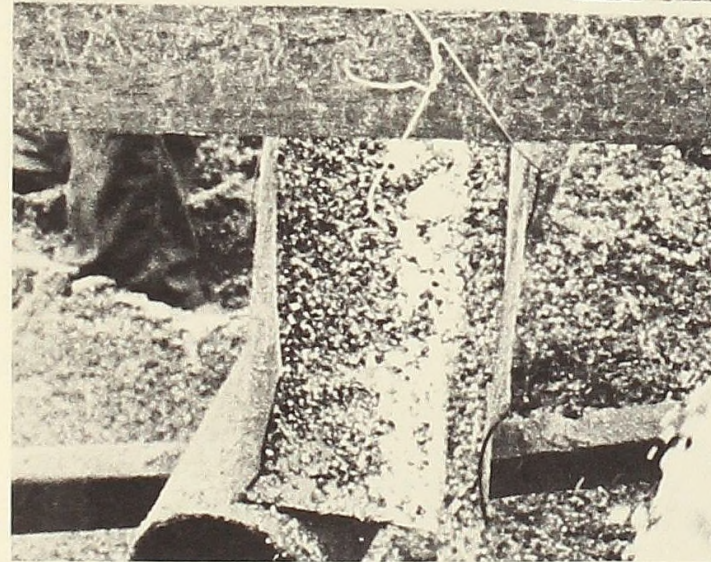

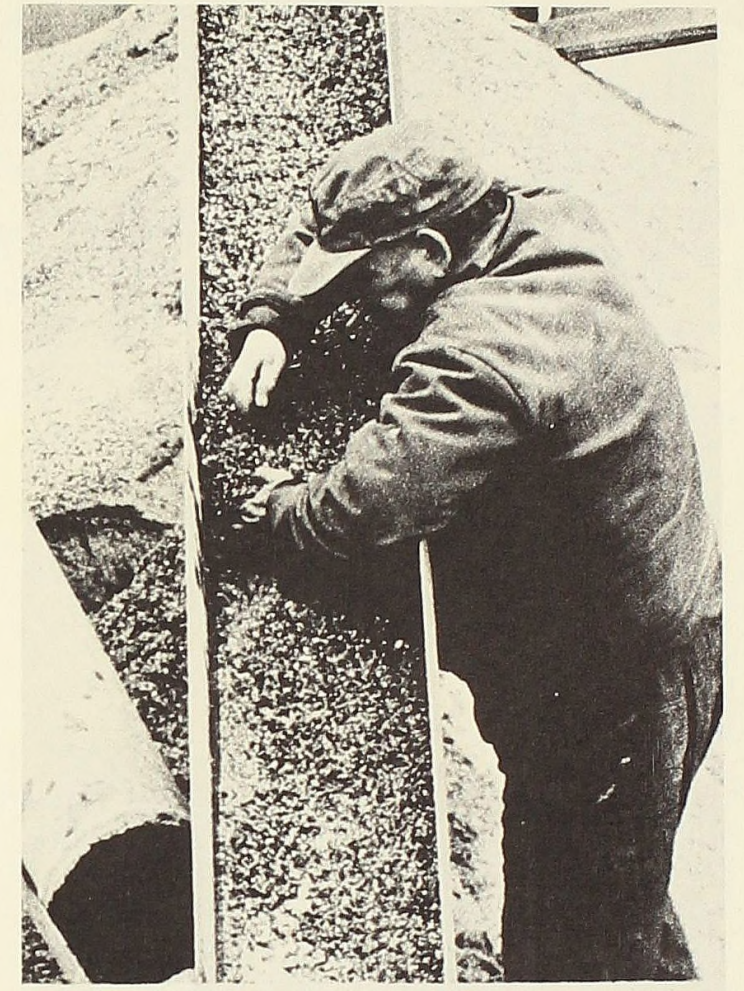

It is only within the context of all available information that anything new, discovered or created, makes sense.

Without exception, every phase of college life is a part of the enduring tradition of scholars, even though experienced by the "trend-setting" generation.

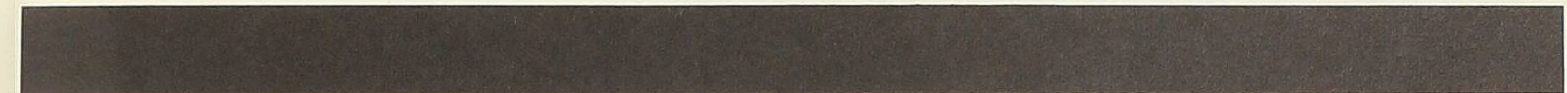

Academic studies are much the same as they were centuries ago, although undeniably more technologically and quantitatively advanced.

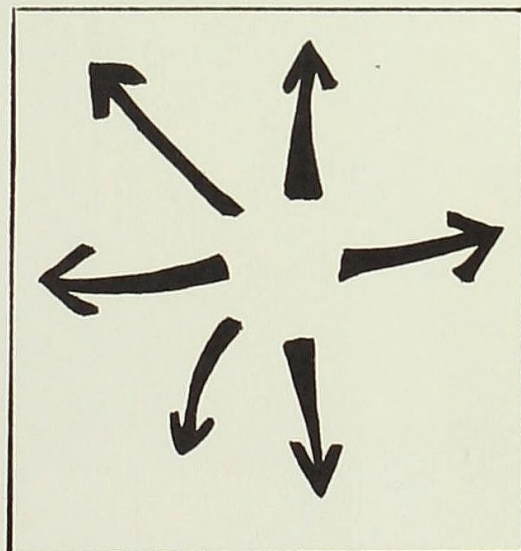

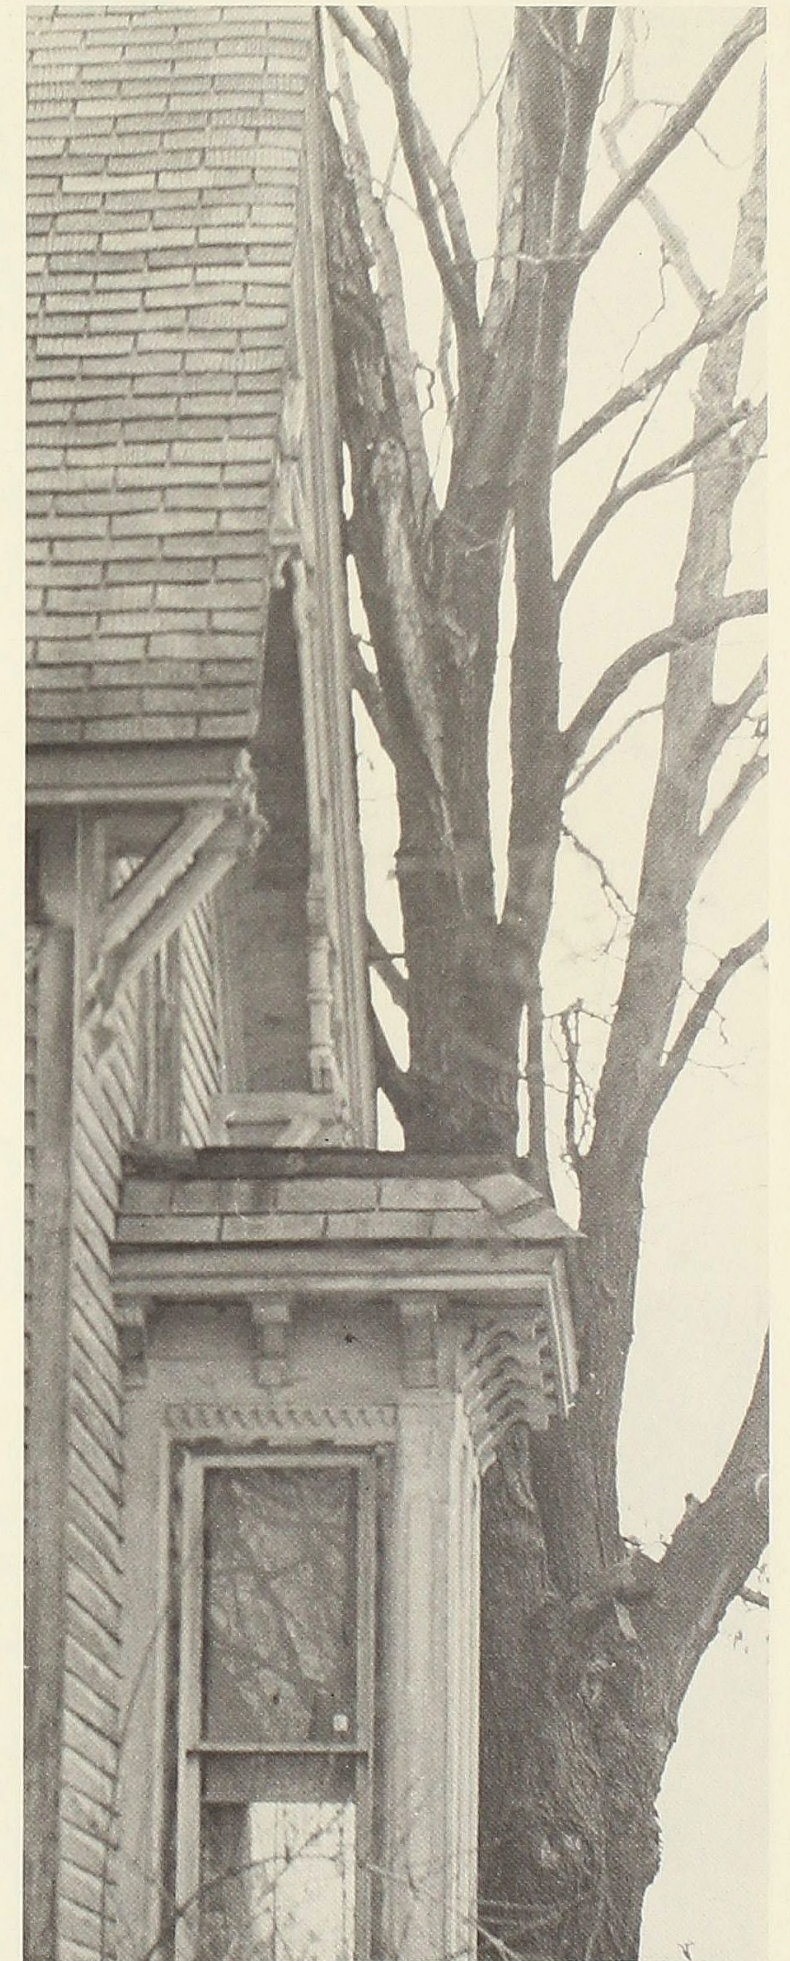

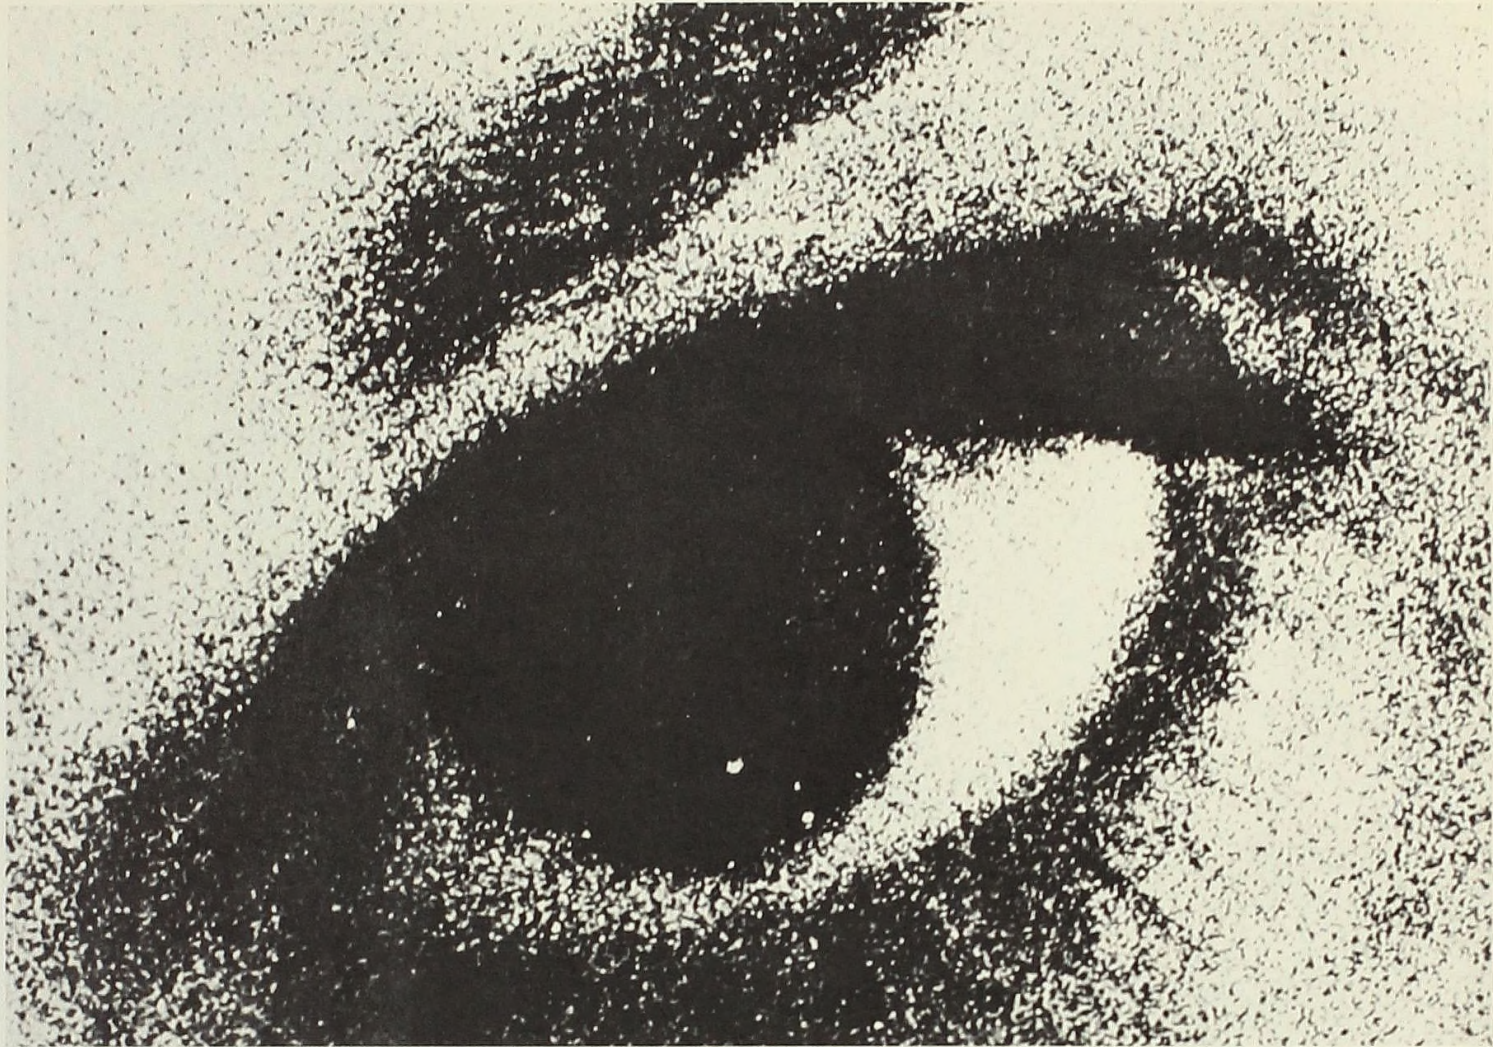

Only when we, the traditionally educated, become articulate in our disciplines,

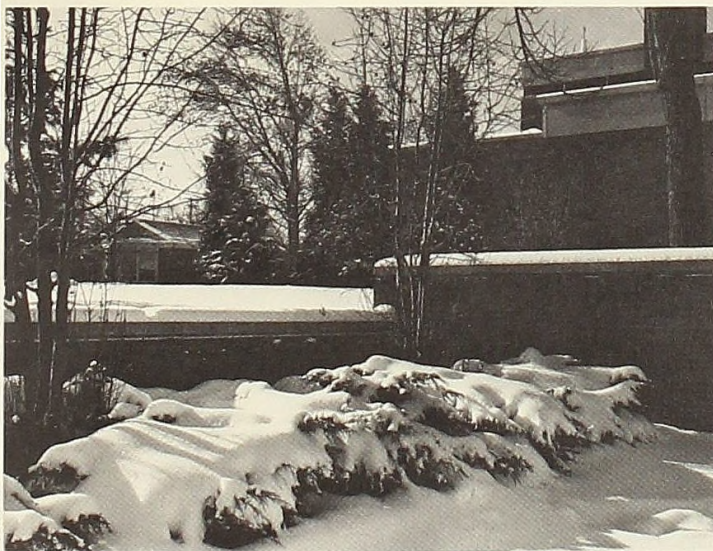

Can we be the innovators of tomorrow.

An individual's capacity to PERCEIVE determines his environment.

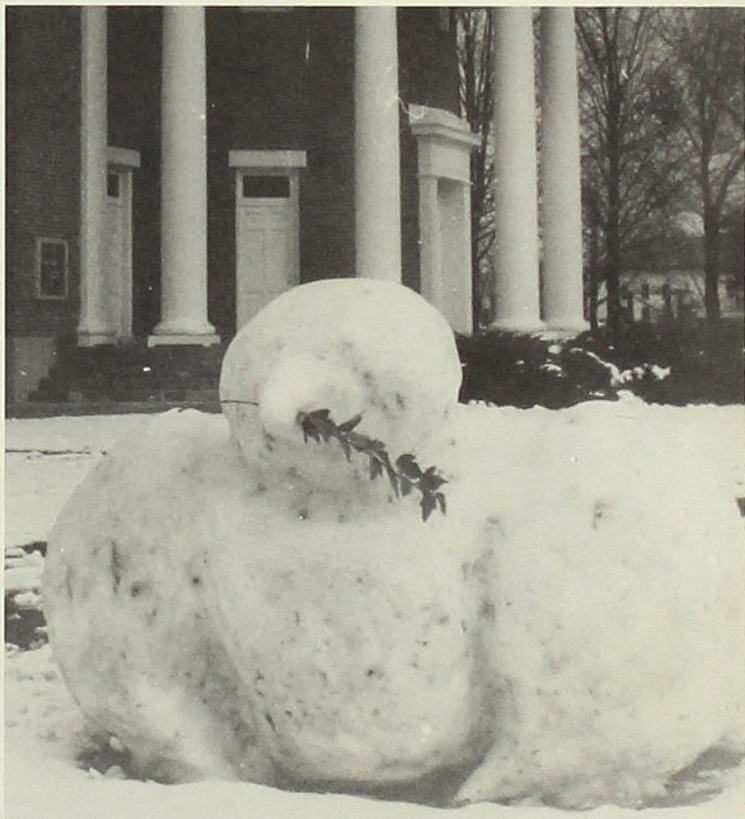

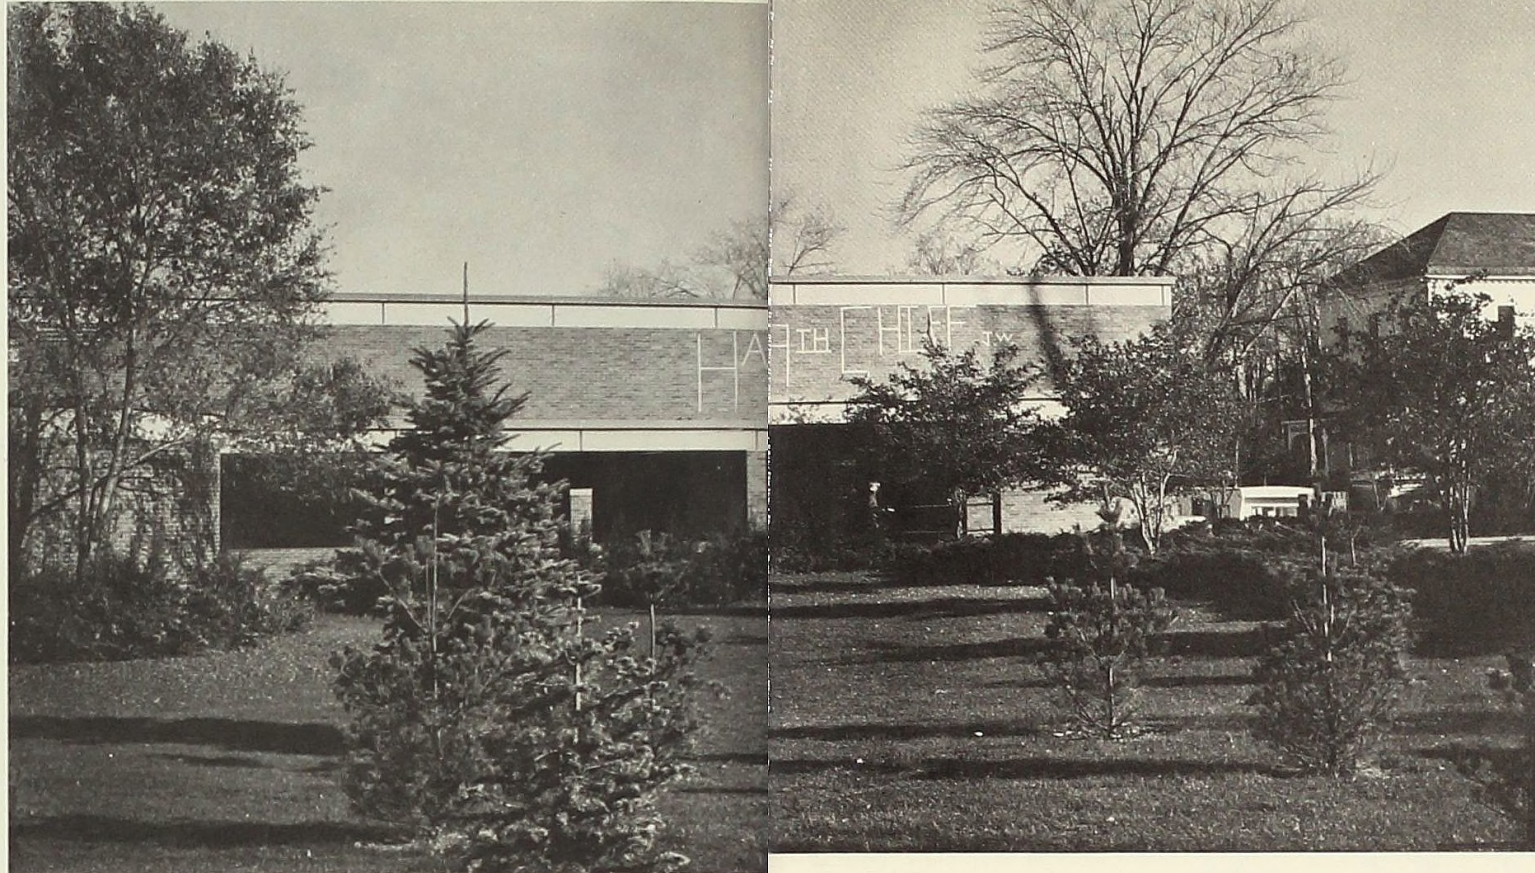

One perceives changes that encompass the activities of man in a span of years,

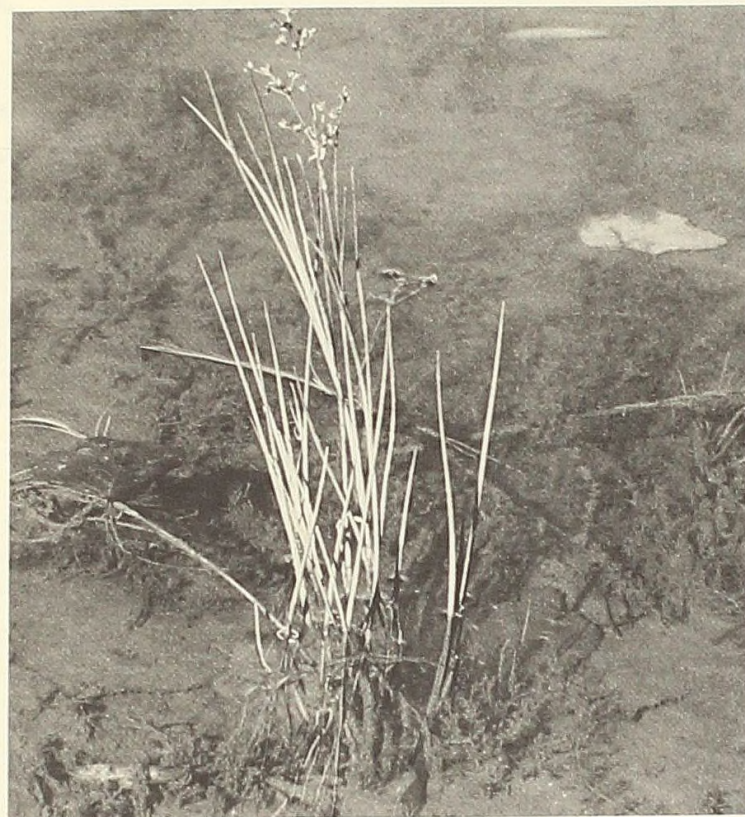

or the fluctuations of nature in diurnal and seasonal changes.

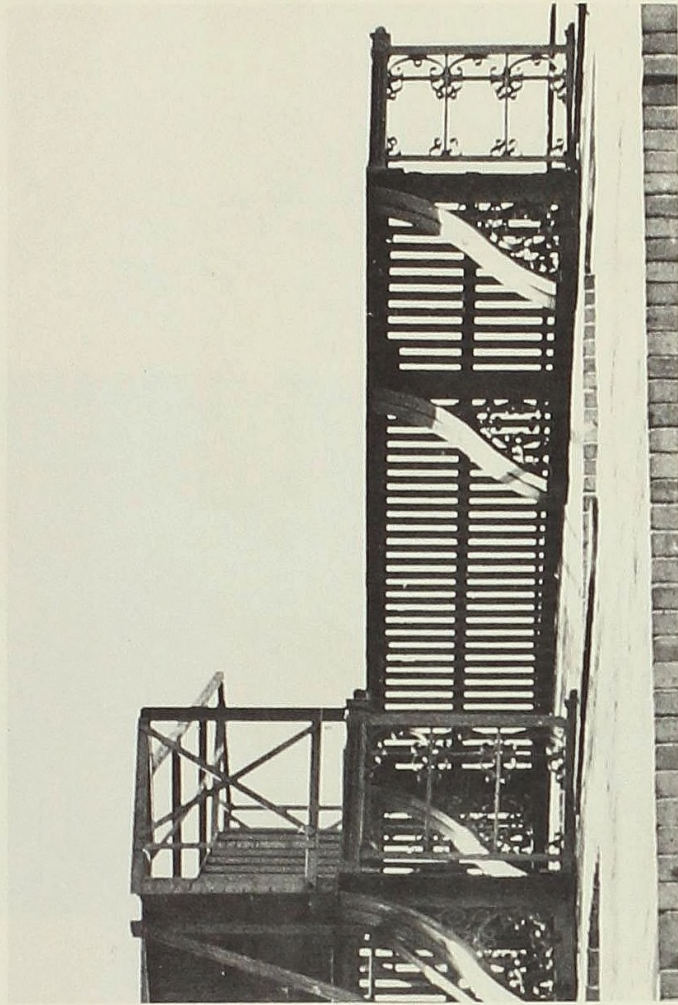

Man's perceptions, like himself, are unique.

Appreciation and worth change from man to man, and with each setting.

Environment is actualized in the form and function of architecture: it is a visual statement of man's awareness and perceptions.

ASSURANCE

I am sure where to begin.
One begins with the way the wind blows.
The trees tilt in the wind,
The landscape bends.

The river will be high this year.
Logs in the dam will strain, and
Water spurting through the cracks
Will keep the algae from growing.

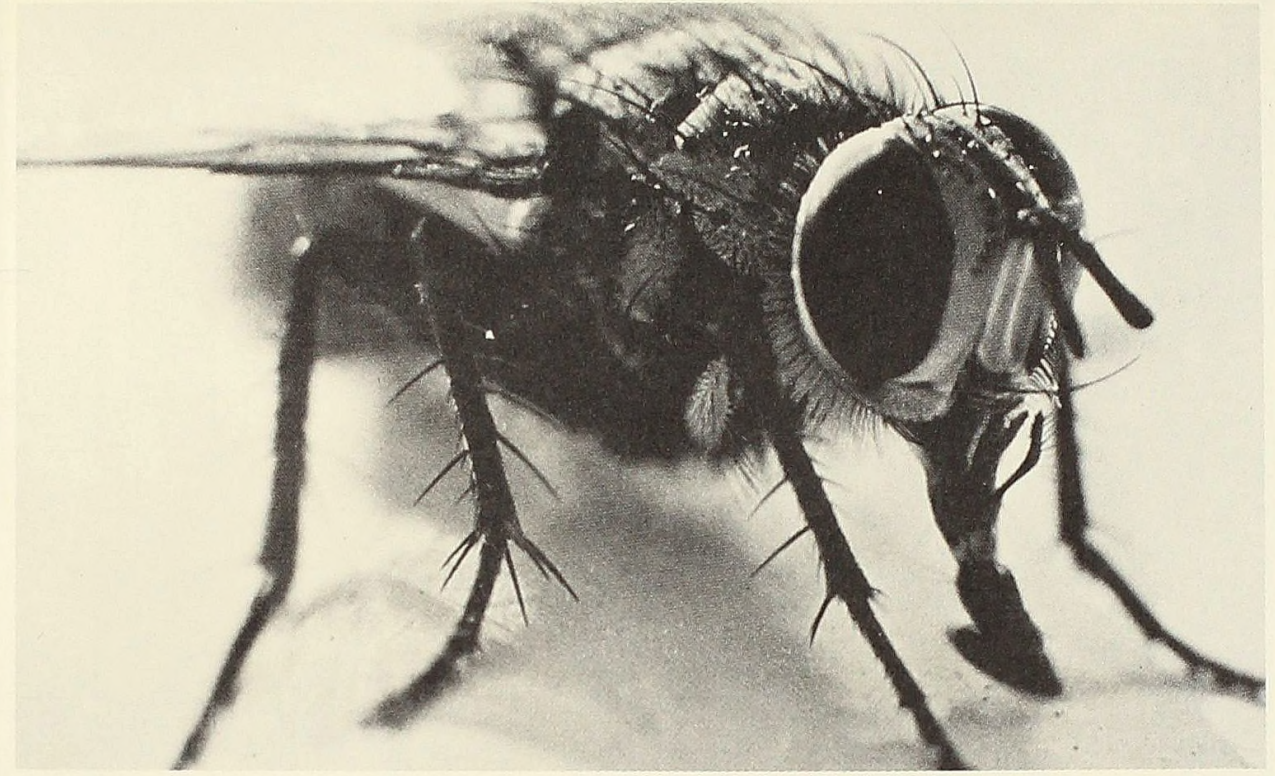

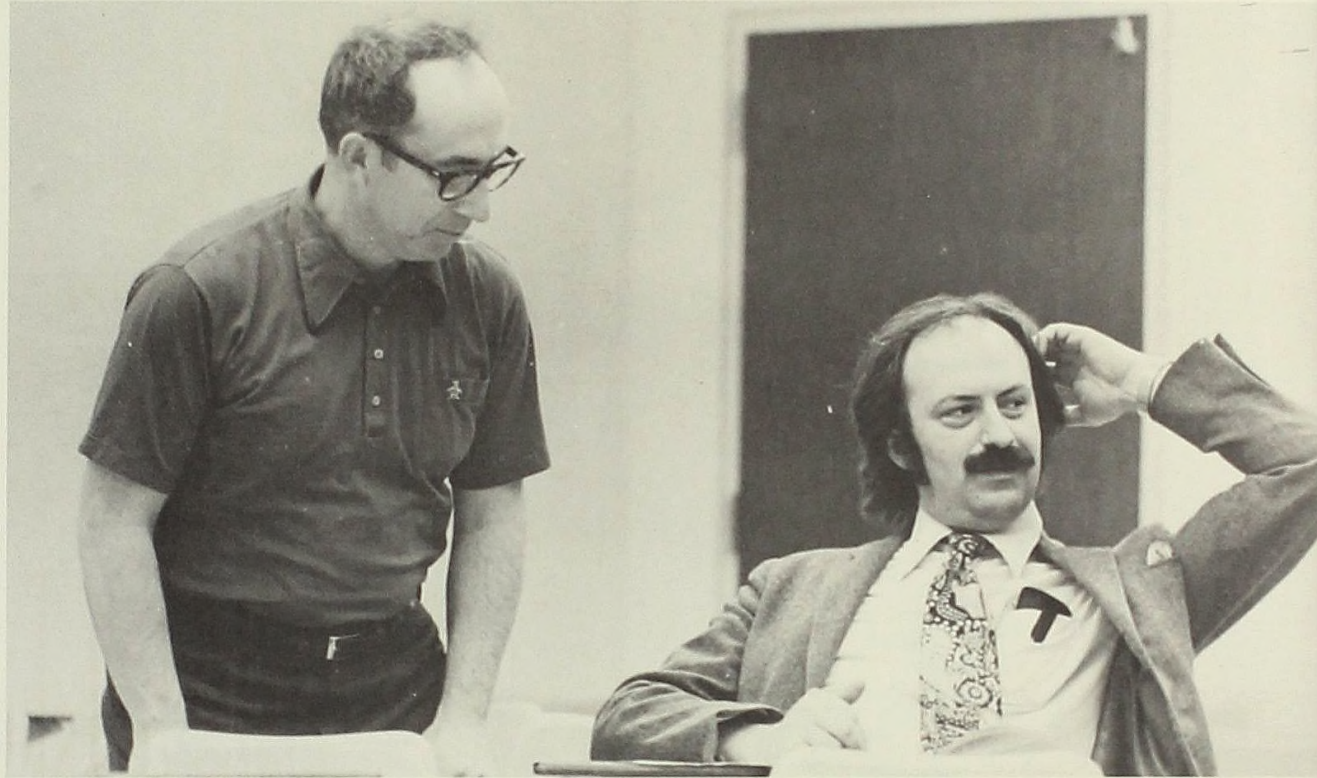

Fish in the deep pools will be
Well-fed; the rapids have strength
In high water and pull down
Frogs and crawfish.

Trees — birches — by the riverside
Grow: much water, much growth.

And the wind blowing through
The birches, tilts and bends
The landscape; I am sure
This is where to begin.

Russell Rock

RESPONSE TO NATURE'S AFFECTIONS

I'd like to kick the sand,
To pound the sun,
To stomp the waves,
To stone the birds . . .
To make them feel me
The way I feel them . . .

How then does innovation occur?

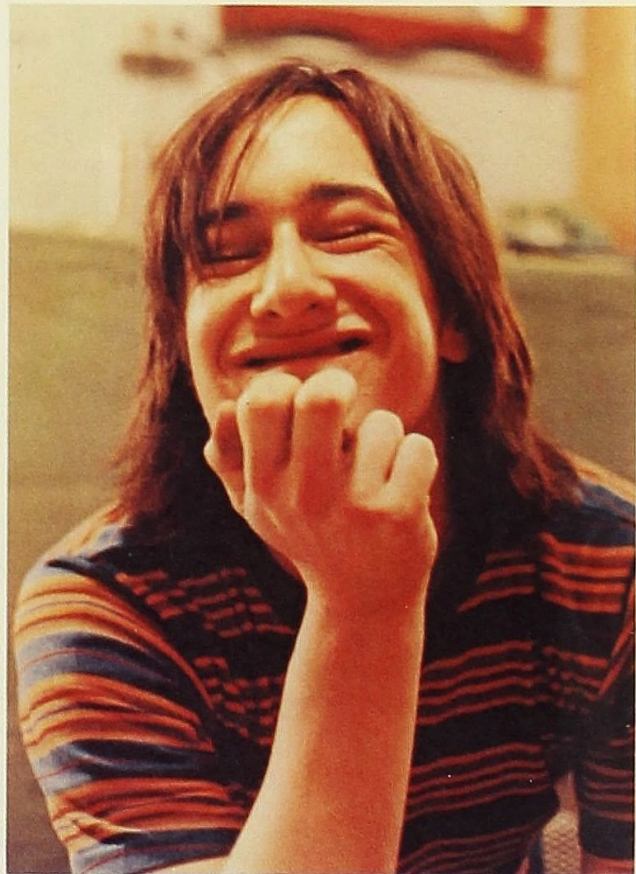

As individuals of any generation are unique,

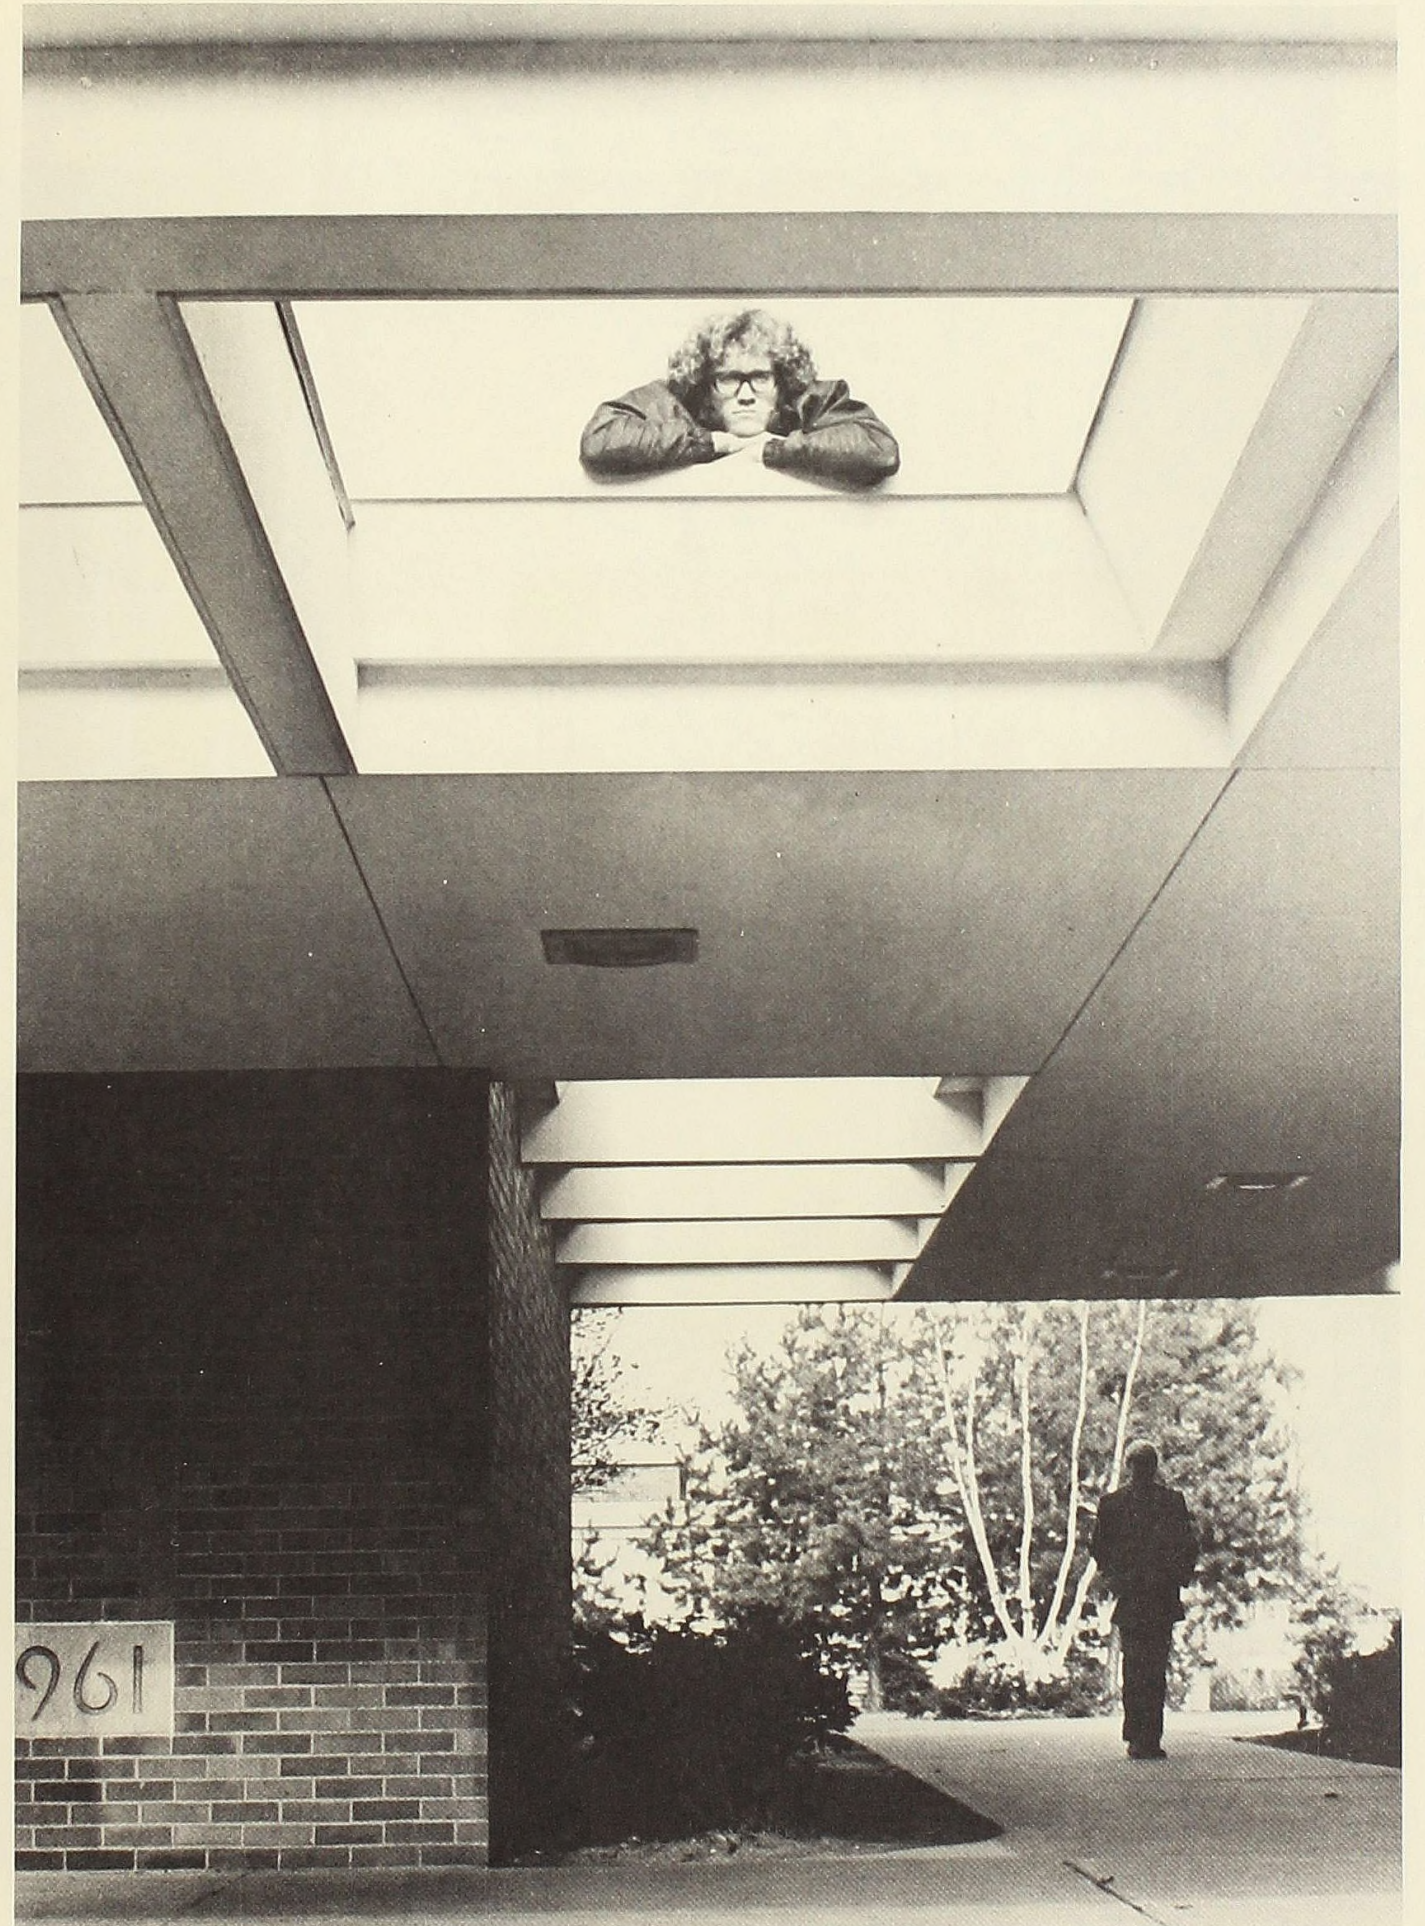

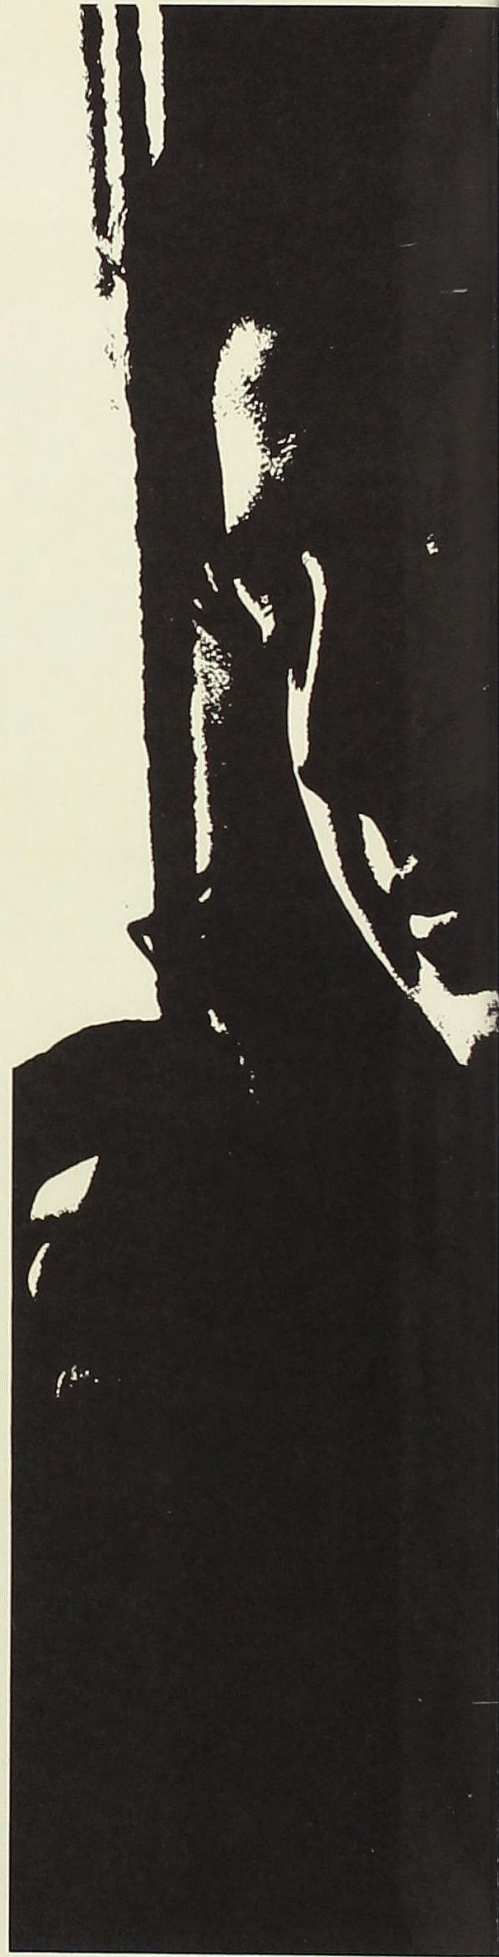

so are their lives and attitudes.

It is his uniqueness and individual brand of creativity,

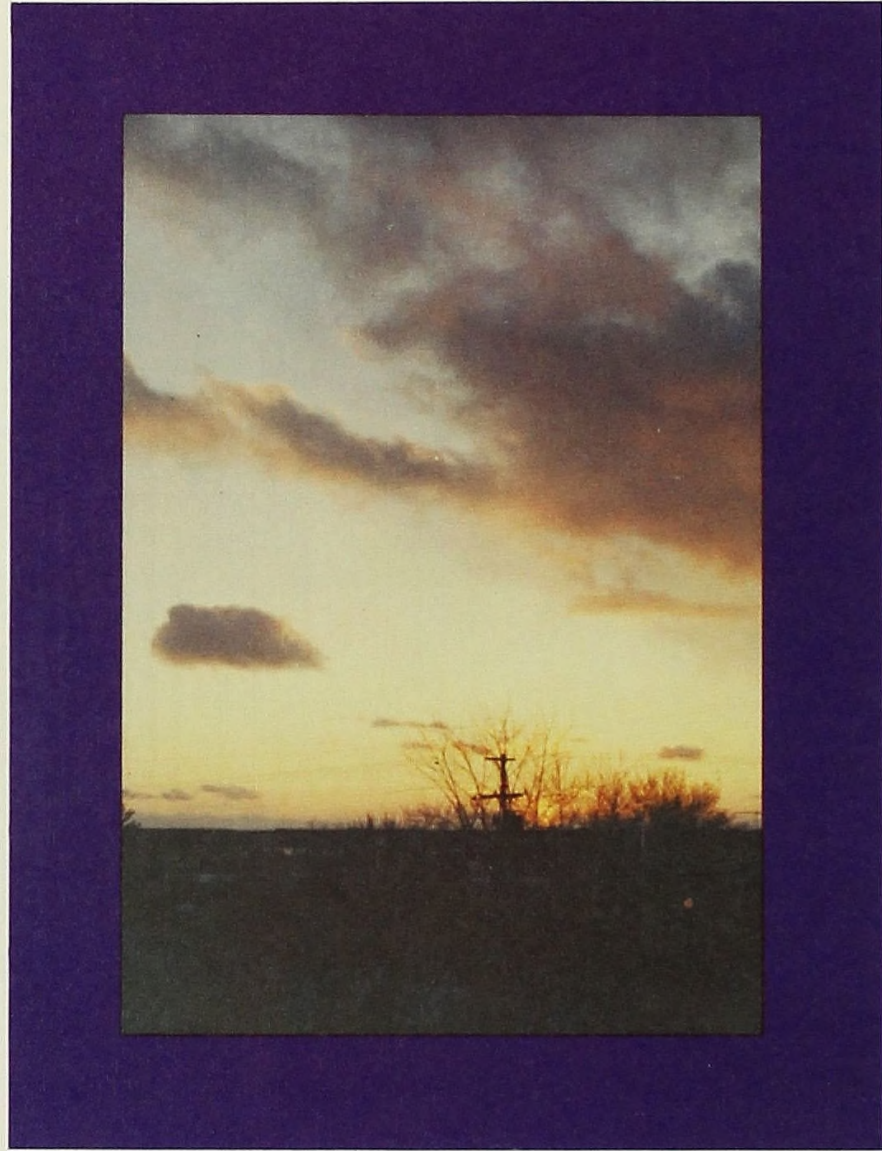

combined with experience and the knowledge he has acquired

(with the traditions to which he adheres),

that permit him, or more correctly, challenge him,

to produce, discover, or create something of worth for humanity.

Graduation: a traditional ceremony of academia — a new experience of decisions and careers. Old and new. A culmination of seventeen years of schooling (should I continue?). A time of determining what I shall be doing for the rest of my life. I've grown up. All of a sudden I must decide. I am a graduate.

A special thanks to Gordon Beld for use of all his candid.

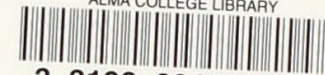

To an editor, this page always seems so long in coming, and yet a little too soon. In the preceding 207 pages I would like to think that I've said something or shown you something that you will point to years later and say, "There." If I've forgotten something very important (like your boyfriend, your place in the Union, your professor), it's because there were so many important things to so many people. And I guess being an editor is in itself very gratifying — this book will always be a little "special" to me. I'm proud of this book, so grant me this page to sit back with a sigh of relief and say, "There."

These are the people that helped me say it:

Assistant Editor — Linda Belanger
Business Manager — Richard Geard
Copy Editor — Sandy Cobel Geard
Art Layout Editor — Henry Matthews
Photography Editor — Mark Dylewski
Assistant Photographer — Linda Green
